Praises Trinitarian Nuns Directing Lay Missioners

PHILADELPHIA Lay participation in the work of the Missionary Society of the Most Holy Trinity presents a picture of the Most Blessed Trinity. Sisters were emphasized in the annual convention of the Order of the Most Holy Trinity, which was held here, last week.

His Eminence Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, principal speaker at the meeting, praised the work of the men and women of the Missionary Society. "It would be the delight of Father Judge," he said, "if he were able to behold their work."

Efforts of the Trinitarian Sisters, as they are also known, in the archdiocese brought this tribute from Cardinal Dougherty.

"It is consoling to hear how men and women have already done during their short stay in that region."

"The spirit is true with the other work since their coming to this diocese. How carefully how faithfully and how lovingly they have been at work in the diocese. Only in the next life will these Sisters receive their adequate reward. It may be said in passing that the more of these Sisters we have in the diocese, the more we shall be pleased."

According To The Doctor

If a person has sedentary habits and neglected a little exercise for some time, the heart as well as the other muscles becomes weak. It is a person's habit to sit down with a book or take very little exercise. Only in the next life will these Sisters receive their adequate reward. It may be said in passing that the more of these Sisters we have in the diocese, the more we shall be pleased.

According to the doctor, the heart is a muscle and like all muscles it needs exercise. If a person has sedentary habits and neglected a little exercise for some time, the heart as well as the other muscles becomes weak. It is a person's habit to sit down with a book or take very little exercise. Only in the next life will these Sisters receive their adequate reward. It may be said in passing that the more of these Sisters we have in the diocese, the more we shall be pleased.

Faith Stories For Little Ones

Which the Greater Fool? Many years ago there was a certain lord who kept a fool in his house. As many great men did in those days for their amusement. Now this lord had given the fool a staff, and charged him to keep it till he met with one that was a greater fool than himself, bidding him to deliver the staff to him. Not many years after, the lord fell sick and, indeed, was sick unto death. His fool came to see him, and the sick lord told him that he must shortly leave him. "And where art thou going?" said the fool. "Into another world," said the lord. "And when wilt thou return in a month?" "No," said the lord. "In a year?" "No." "When then?" "Never never." "And what provision hast thou made," said the fool, "for thy entertainment in the place where thou art going?" "I know not," said the fool. "I have not made any provision for my entertainment in the place where I am going," said the fool. "I have not made any provision for my entertainment in the place where I am going," said the fool.

F. T. A. Activities

Members of the Sacred Heart Parent-Teacher Association wish to thank their many friends who generously helped in making their annual bridge-luncheon such a fine success.

It was held Jan. 16 in 10th Ward Republican Club Rooms and despite the very hazardous traveling, there was a very good crowd present. There were several splendid prizes awarded. Refreshments were served, and everyone voted the party a grand success.

It is fitting at this time, that the P-T-A make public their appreciation of the fine spirit displayed by the Republican Club when they so generously donated the use of their club rooms for the P-T-A party.

Sacred Heart P-T-A is conducting a weekly series of contract bridge in the library located at 32 Primrose St. Mrs. Bradford Noyes is giving instructions and the price is 25 cents. The public is invited.

Consolation Of First Native Bishop In Java

BATAVIA Dutch East Indies—The Dutch East Indies were made happy by the consecration of the first native Javanese bishop when the Most Rev. Albertus Ronggolintang, B.S., was elevated to the hierarchy and appointed Vicar Apostolic of Semarang in Central Java.

The demonstrations of enthusiasm and devoted affection only from the Catholic clergy and "chieftains of other" religions were a tangible proof that the union of the Church authorities came at an opportune moment.

The consecration of the first native Javanese bishop was a happy event for the Dutch East Indies. Getting On In The World

Above all success in life all material happiness, all wealth and honor are vain if the paramount work of preparing ourselves and keeping ourselves in readiness for the summons home which our Father sends to each one at some unlooked date in his life. How happy we shall feel when that summons arrives if we can approach ourselves with no grave neglect, at least for many previous years, in attending to the one thing necessary to secure everlasting happiness.

The thought of death is sad and repulsive to most of us, but a brave man does not shrink from facing an unpleasant issue when it is inevitable, and a prudent man takes sure and energetic measures to save himself from possible ruin or discomfort. This is precisely what we ought to do in the business of our salvation. We ought to look death square in the face so that the sight of it may not scare us when it beckons us to follow it into eternity and we ought to prepare and keep ourselves in such a state that in an emergency of suddenness or accident we may be taken unawares.

First of all make it a rule of your life to go to confession regularly. You are not bound to do more than once a year, but a Catholic who is not in the habit of confession will not find his religious observances to what is strictly obligatory. Independently of its primary effects, it soothes the troubled conscience, gives courage to continue the fight against sin, and with a "Compline" impresses a Christian stamp on a man's life.
