ROSARIANS MEET MONDAY

Rosarians will hold their regular meeting in the school hall on Feb 3. Refreshments and cards will follow the meeting.

Mrs. Victor Thibault, chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. Joseph Winkler, Mrs. Fred Shaubmen, Mrs. George Jost, Mrs. William E. Burns and Miss Stella Lavine.

ROSARY SOCIETY SUPPER

From all reports the annual pre-Lenten Supper of the Rosary Society is already an assured success. Tuesday, Feb. 4 is the date. Accommodations will be made for 400 at one sitting, and those in charge will be prepared to begin serving at 5:30 sharp. From 7 to 9 o'clock interesting sound pictures will be shown in the Auditorium.

Mrs. Norman J. Pfaff, General Chairman, assisted by Mrs. Frank W. Fischer, and the Misses Nora Meagher and Monica McLean, are striving to have a large gathering for this enjoyable affair. Tickets have been mailed to the 77 leaders, and will also be sold at the rectory. The price of the ticket is 50 cents and a most substantial meal is promised to all who attend. Whatever profits are derived will be used to purchase furnishings for the sanctuary and altar, and to secure additional cassocks for the altar boys.

According to present plans the young people of the parish will be able to enjoy themselves dancing in the School Auditorium on the three Friday evenings preceding Lent—February 7, 14 and 21. Arrangements have already been made for a large dance on the 21st and it is expected that the other dates, 7th and 14th—will also be available. Next week's COURIER will give more information on these dances.

HOLY NAME BANQUET

Nearly 400 Fathers and Sons attended the annual banquet of the Holy Name Society on Jan. 22 in the Church hall. Those present enjoyed a fine supper, very capably served by members of the Rosary Society.

A program of speaking followed, during which Rev. John S. Randall, substituting for Rev. Gannon, Ryan, Chaplain of the Newman Club at Syracuse University, who was prevented by sickness from attending, spoke of the importance of the work done by Newman Clubs in colleges and universities.

Coach John Sullivan of Aquinas Institute stressed the importance of football as a means of developing such traits of character in our youth. Daley Lefevre, Coach of the University of Rochester, brought out the duty a father has to build up intimate relations of confidence and interest between himself and his son. After the speeches Coach Sullivan entertained with movies of the Aquinas football team in action as well as of some shots of some of the bigger football games of the past season.

Two Important Feast Days

CANDLEMAS DAY

The Purification or Candlemas Day Sunday, Feb. 2 this year. On this day the Blessed Virgin complied with the law of Moses which provided that a woman should present herself at the temple to be purified a certain number of days after a child was born. The feast is called Candlemas because the Church blesses the candles to be borne in the procession of the day.

BLESSING OF THROATS

St. Blase, Bishop and martyr's Feast is observed on Monday, Feb. 3 this year. St. Blase devoted the earlier years of his life to the study of philosophy and afterwards became a physician. He became Bishop of Sebaste in Armenia and was seized and hurried off to prison by Agricolaus the governor. On his way to prison a distracted mother whose child was suffering from a disease of the throat implored his aid. At his intercession the child was cured and since that time he has often been invoked in cases of a similar disease. After other tortures the saint was beheaded in 316.

STRANGE BUT TRUE

Little-Known Facts For Catholics

By M. J. MURRAY

The Papacy and Peace Discussed by Msgr. Sheen

No nation today lives in isolation from any other nation. We are as organ as the universe. If you throw a stone into the sea, it causes a ripple which widens in ever greater circles until it affects even the most distant shore. In like manner no war between States is purely national; every war today is international in the sense that every nation is affected by it.

Where should we look for an agency of peace to end war precipitated by the League of Nations which arose after the first World War? Admitting that it will take human sentiment a long time to give sufficient force to resolve first it was born in the flames of revenge [illegible] therefore enjoined peace on the vanquished [illegible]

Next the League of Nations was supposed to be as the word implies a unity of nations, but it had nothing but words to create unity. In order to bind anything together you must be outside of it. You cannot tie a bundle of wood if you are in the bundle yourself. You cannot pack your valise if you go into the valise yourself. So neither can you the nations into a league if you are one of the nations. If you do the league will mean only obeying someone else's policies, and heaven knows if we will not obey our own policies we will not obey someone else's. Such a league must recognize a standard outside and beyond its decrees by which even it is bound. No nation will admit the league's control over its sovereignty [illegible] unless the league admits that it is subject to a Law and a Lawgiver who is greater than the lawmaking bodies.

But there [illegible] an authority.

THE ONLY HOPE

Somewhere in this world [illegible] a sovereign State just as sovereign politically as the United States though territory occupies only a few city blocks 106 acres to be exact. It has no army, no guns, no defenses. One hundred armed men could capture it tomorrow morning if they aimed to. It has no selfish material interests anywhere on the face of God's earth. It excels far in other purposes than to trade, barter and exchange in the hearts of men. In the head of that sovereign State is the only hope of world peace—the only hope.

Would you know how much the Pope is our friend prepared to fight for peace and leadership for us? There were three Popes [illegible] accidents. The first takes us back to 1922. It was that year that Lenin after enslaving Russia in Bolshevism, gave the order to carry it through the world, beginning with Spain and Poland. We must drive a sword through Europe, but it must first pierce the heart of Poland. Following out these orders, Tukachevsky, boasting that he would lead the first anti-God army through Europe, swept into Poland like a scourge and in less than forty days the Poles retreated four hundred miles. In June the Reds captured thousands of prisoners and almost all of the Polish heavy artillery. In July whole regiments of the new Polish army broke in panic. General Paleudski of Poland, frightened and worried, moaned that "the nightmare of defeat" was sweeping over his entire army. Other nations weak from the World War, decided to let Poland defend civilization alone. Archives and government offices were transferred from Warsaw, the diplomatic corps prepared to follow, but the hour had come when men had no hope but in God. As one diplomat after another left frantic over Warsaw there was one diplomat who telegraphed for permission to remain in Warsaw regardless of what had happened. Addressing the other diplomats fleeing for safety he said: "I am not like yourselves only a diplomat. As a priest I have the duty of keeping up the courage of my people. Notice how he did it.

On the sixth day of August, this priest began a novena of prayer with the people of Warsaw. On the day that it opened which was the Feast of the Transfiguration hundreds of thousands of faithful singing litanies of intercession to Our Blessed Mother filled continuously through the streets. General Weygand of the Allied Commission, hearing of the approaching Reds said to him, "Only your prayers can save us now."

SPURRED BY PRIEST

The novena was to end on the fifteenth day of August the Feast of the Assumption of Our Lady. The Reds confident of victory had already nominated the officers who were to govern Poland. Three days before it ended they were within 12 miles of Warsaw, two days before it ended they were within nine, the day before it ended there was heavy fighting in the suburbs as the Reds were now within six miles of Warsaw.

Eight hundred Catholic young men from the Warsaw high school made a miraculous charge at the same time Pilsudski was attacking from the rear. But they were not alone. They had gone out to battle before listening to the priest who urged them on to defend the cause of God against the forces of atheism and to save the civilization and culture of Europe from barbarism. These young men made a frontal attack on Tukachevsky as Pilsudski made his rear attack. The Red ranks broke. Tukachevsky retreated and Europe was saved from Bolshevism at least for twenty years. And who was this man who on the day the novena ended stood on one of the great battlefields of history and saw the Red scourge rolled back from Europe and its faith in God? It was Achille Ratti, the future Pope Pius XI.

We now turn to another personage and another incident. In the year 1919 Communism was violently strong in Germany. Communistic gunmen roamed the streets. Then a Red army was created which going into action killed 325 people on April 25 in Munich alone.

But the number was to have been 326. They had raked with machine-gun fire the home of the man who unmoved by threats had mounted the pulpit of the Munich Cathedral against the orders of the Red committee. Finally, they decided to assassinate him.

On the 29th day of April at three o'clock in the afternoon Commander Seiler of the Red Army of the South and his aide-de-camp Brongratz armed with orders from Eglhofer appeared at the door of his house in company with a group of Red soldiers. The thugs gaining entrance to the house by threaten-

COURIER'S CURRENT CINEMA COMMENTS

By JOHN SPRINGER

(On the National Legion of Decency List for this week are listed three new films as Class B. They are: "Night at Earl Carroll's"—Objection: Suggestive costumes. "Come Live With Me"—Objection: Light treatment of marriage; "Invisible Woman"—Objection: Suggested Nudity, some suggestive films.

"The Great Commandment" is listed as A-1 with the following observation: This film, referring to New Testament events, should not be understood as a full and accurate presentation of the pertinent scriptural incidents.)

It's a great week for the gangsters on the movie screens anyway. The gentlemen of the gun all the way from the last of the Dillinger gang to the Thief of Bagdad get their innings on the screen this week. Only two of the movies of the week struggle along without a solitary criminal. The most typical of the gang movies is

High Sierra—(Not Yet Classified)

The most realistic racketeer characterizations that the screen has seen have been brought to the movies by Humphrey Bogart in Petrified Forest and Dead End. Now, in High Sierra, Bogart plays another strong gangster role and plays it with vigor but the picture, aimed mainly at mass fire Essentially it's the story of the last days of the last gangster and, as a rule it's geared for exciting melodrama.

But it wastes too much time in showing us how this gangster loves the green grass and the trees and how kind he is to an old man, a little crippled girl and a dog. Such slush is inconsistent with the character and the attempted glorification of the gangster is not only objectionable but makes these portions completely unbelievable.

However, working against odds, Bogart manages to build a strong portrayal and Ida Lupino is effective although her role too is implausible. Donald MacBride gives a good performance as the dying gangster chief, with Alan Curtis and Arthur Kennedy well cast as two-bit hoodlums who try to break into the big time. A fresh and lovely girl named Joan Leslie, who has done some work as a child actress under the name of Joan Brodel is introduced in the picture. But although the acting leaves little to be desired, the picture is such an out-and-out glorification of a gangster that it often becomes silly rather than exciting.

Tall, Dark and Handsome—(A-2)

A gangster of a different type is played by Cesar Romero in "Tall, Dark and Handsome." In this Romero has acquired a reputation as a killer, although the picture lets you know that he wouldn't swat a fly without remorse. It's a burlesque of gang films, done with several clever touches, although pictures like "A Slight Case of Murder" have somewhat taken the edge off gangster burlesques. Milton Berle, popular radio and vaudeville comedian, shows promise as a movie comic while Charlotte Greenwood is in for her regulation type of grotesque dame. Stanley Clements overdoes his tough
