Virginia—A-2 If the movies keep on they're going to have all of us Yankees hanging our heads in shame. "Virginia" is one of the most obviously contrived pieces of screen fare that has come to the movies for many a month. It's the one about the beautiful girl who is loved by a noble Southerner and a nasty Yankee. In the course of this she becomes reformed from a frivolous specimen to a fine figure of Southern womanhood. The picture also works in a little "Time With the Wind," as well as a subplot that reads "Rebecca."
