THE CONFESSORALS

God bless these quiet courts of peace,
The homely dark confessionals,
Where grace her mysteries reveals,
And mercy works her miracles.

They stood in damp, old catacombs,
They still are found in every church,
And will stand while poor sin-stained hearts
Shall crave the cleansing from all sinful.

They call the old, they call the young;
Both rich and poor here bow their heads;
And tell their tale of woe and sin,
And all leave eased and comforted.

So many a one who went astray
Here finds his way back to the Lord;
To many a one who sinned and lost,
Her wreath of honor is restored.

O Christians, come with confidence,
Forever leave behind all fear,
For Christ Himself administers
The "Sacrament of Kindness" here, attack by outside weapons.

More than that the bay and the lake in both directions can be seen to the distance of an hour's ride.
The house, however, may not appear in its present daylight without being seen when far away,
and the English may be confronted with the French soldiers in an hour's ride.
This is the best possible site for the Sun House Part of the house, east of Fort des Sables in 1717.

The French empire in America was a long time ago, but the French soldiers report a Seneca Indian taken captive by the French in the fall of the month of September, 1634. It was the Seneca who said he came from a village called Candida, which is a village name recorded on the iron marker at the site of the village in Elm, New York.

They lived in the parish of St.
Remi in the diocese of Arles, Provence, France. Provence is a region in southern France where under a warm sun, rains left by the old Roman Empire blend with landscapes of agricultural and pastoral scenic beauty.
In Arles is a Roman arena or stone-built circus, and after the Roman time, but long ago, the great bishops of Arles contended for supremacy with the papal See at Rome. From this Provence, a country which was bordered with remains of ancient civilization to the wild and forested shores of Lake Ontario, came Louis Thomas de Joncaire. There are now many of his descendants living in America. (See Sec. O. F. P., Vol. II, p.
441 foll.) Living in Arles about this same time at least as late as 1685 was an ancestor of Mr. Sheldon Fisher, custodian emeritus of our Rochester Historical Society's Museum.

TORTURE THREATENS
Louis Thomas de Joncaire became master agent for the Seneca and most influential man on the south shore of Lake Ontario.
He first arrived among the Senecas humiliated as a captive and in danger of torture and death.
When this was, we are not sure.
It may have been as early as the time of Denonville's attack on the Senecas in 1687, about which time Joncaire arrived in Canada as an enlisted soldier. His captivity ended about 1694. It is reported that of the several soldiers taken cap-
