MY OLD HOME TOWN

In the forests of my home town,
As I walk through them once more,
All the oaks and pines and beech trees
Whisper tales they told of yore.

In the gardens of my home town
All the old-time flowers nod:
Roses, tulips and carnations,
Aster, phlox, and goldenrod.

On the alleys of my home town
Neighborly old houses squat;
Swallows circle round their gables,
Their old nests are unforgot.

Little children in my home town
Play and sing the dear old songs
That we sang beneath the linden
With the same fresh lusty tongues.

And the church-bells of my home town
Have the old sad-sweet appeal;
Work-day, feast-day, morn, noon, evening,
They bid men in prayer kneel.

Yet I know, my dear old home town
Nevermore can be the same,
For I read on yonder tombstone
My life's best-beloved name.

Father Lynk, S.V.D.

Lake Ontario

He did much to repair Fort Niagara and was the general in command when Fort Niagara was taken by the English in 1759. Many interesting items about Lake Ontario and adjoining regions may be found in his book, The Last War in America, translated and edited by Emerson A. Hough, in Rochester supplies at Local Historical Division of the Rochester Public Library; original published at New York, 1760.

The war in Europe hung on until ended by the Treaty of Paris in 1763.

Change Course of History

Among the English victories over the French the transfer of Fort Niagara from French to English ownership was the most important event in our region in the contest for ending French power in America. It was of more consequence to Western New York than anything that ever happened in any other war in America including even the American Revolution. [illegible] of Fort Niagara. He had often been at Sea Breeze and Irondequoit. He says that the portage from Indian Landing in Ellison Park to the Genesee River at the location of the University Campus is four leagues. His notice helps to determine the correct location of Indian Landing.

The English army, which took Fort Niagara, began to assemble at Schenectady about May 15, 1759. They proceeded by way of the Mohawk River-Oneida Lake route to Oswego where they made boats to take them up the lake. This use of boats precludes the idea that any of them marched over the Ridge Road trail. They camped en route at Irondequoit Bay, probably at Sea Breeze, July 2-3, 1759. General Prideaux was in command. Sir William Johnson was commander of all the Indians. The Prideaux-Johnson army which was coming along the south shore of Lake Ontario from June 30 to July 6, 1759 numbered: 2200 white men; 600 Indians at first, and 900 at the time of surrender. Their itinerary was as follows: June 26 to July 1 at Oswego; July 2 overnight at Sodus; July 3-4, two days and nights at Irondequoit Bay; July 5, overnight at Braddocks Bay, Manhou Beach; July 6 at Johnson Creek; arrived July 7 at Petite Marais (Little Marsh) 4 miles east of Fort Niagara.
