Holy Rosary Parish ORGANIZATION NEWS

The month of June brings to a close activities of the various parish organizations of Holy Rosary Church. Mrs. Mary Shays, spiritual director for the Rosarian Society, and Father Flynn, spiritual director for the Holy Name Society, have sponsored the last meeting for the month. With the June meeting of the Senior Sodality, June 11, and of the Junior Sodality, June 23, Father Burns and Father O'Brien will close the sodality program for the summer month.

On Friday, June 11, the High School Club will hold its final program beginning with Benediction in the Church and continuing in the school hall. Mrs. Mary Shays, director for the Rosarian Society, and Father Flynn, spiritual director for the Holy Name Society, have sponsored the program. The club is most gratified with the enthusiasm shown and the work accomplished by these organizations and wishes to thank both the officers and the members for their cooperation in parish interests.

The boys and girls who are to graduate from the Eighth Grade enjoyed their picnic at the Contantus Lake on Monday. The day will be one of the happy memories among the many, happy, grammar school days spent at Holy Rosary. Josephine, Sophie and John Terhaar, who were unable to attend because of illness, joined their good wishes with the rest of the class.

The Rev. John J. Nacca celebrated his first Solemn High Mass at Holy Rosary Church on Sunday at 11 o'clock. The Rt. Rev. Major Charles F. Shays, pastor, delivered the sermon to a devoted congregation of relatives and friends.

The Rosarians held elections on Monday evening, June 2. Each officer is elected to serve two years. The present second vice-president and two guards have served only one year and will continue to hold office.

Miss Alice Masseth is the new president, succeeding Miss Mary Iverson. Mrs. Joseph Wilkins succeeds Mrs. Frank Corrigan as first vice-president. Mrs. Harold Perry remains a second vice-president. Mrs. John Dugan succeeds Mrs. William P. Stock as recording secretary. Mrs. Frank Sullivan succeeds Mrs. Frank McKenna as financial secretary. Mrs. Harris Hull succeeds Miss Grace Leavens as treasurer.

On the Board of Directors Miss Mary Iverson replaces Mrs. Fred Kuntz. Mrs. John Dinesen replaces Mrs. Edwin Reiter. Mrs. Anthony Buehmann replaces Mrs. Harry Coniff. Mrs. Harold Wilkins replaces Mrs. Adolph Winterroth. Remaining on the Board are Mrs. Gilbert Ernst, Mrs. Edward Ebert, Mrs. Henry Terhaar, Mrs. William Schoener, Mrs. Victor Thibault and Mrs. Fred Schumbehl remain in the office of Guards.

SS. Peter and Paul's PARISH ACTIVITIES

Annual parish picnic held at South Park last Sunday proved highly successful despite the wind and threatening weather. The crowd was good and the afternoon was a good time. The races and sports program proved especially exciting and the picnic fare of hot dogs and pop was as popular as ever.

The Credit Union is progressing to the extent that there are now more than one hundred members. SS. Peter and Paul's parish will be host to the conference of parish Credit Unions to be held in the school hall in September. A meeting was held at Holy Family last recently for member parish unions wherein the procedure for buying Defense Bonds was outlined.

The Wednesday parties continue in popularity as fair weather brings out large crowds each week as news of the parties is passed around. Parishioners and their friends are cordially invited to attend.

COURIER'S CURRENT CINEMA COMMENTS

By JOHN SPRINGER

From a Detroit factory to a building in Spain... From New York to a big city hospital. There was a diversity of locales on the city's screens this week and a variety of types of picture, all of the melodrama, comedy, color, music and heart-thriller didn't add up to much entertainment.

"Blood and Sand"—The producers shot the works in "Blood and Sand." They hired a high-class cast and started shooting on production costs. Never has there been such Technicolor magnificence. But out of it all they got a picture that drags out the most tedious scene through reel after reel of film that is, as the whole, heavy and dull.

"The picture was shot years ago with Rudolph Valentino, serving to establish him as the greatest star of the screen. Tyrone Power has the assignment now. He plays the milder whose long-winded saga is presented in a big city picture and plays a bit self-sensually as though he felt pretty foolish about the whole thing. Rita Hayworth supplies Nita Nalanda, a girl who is in love with the stuff and Miss Hayworth, being a rather good actress, does it with her tongue in her cheek as if to say, "I can't help it if I got pushed into this thing, but I must have to take it seriously." I doubt if many in the audience will take the you'd-be-torrid moments very seriously either. What may have been the most interesting part of the movie audiences of 1920 is obvious and a bit corny now.

Nashova, a great actress, gets no chance to do anything but weep incessantly through a tedious role. Linda Darnall is the only lady sweetness. John Carradine, J. Carroll Nash and Laird Cregar bring some realism to their roles, but the picture is a bit overdone with quickly. Reuben Mamoulian, the director, has seen that the color camera has caught scenes of flamboyant beauty. In fact, often Marjorie Reynolds, who is in love with his picture that he forgets to make them moving pictures. Big, beautiful—and boring.

"Reaching for the Sun"—A-2 "Reaching for the Sun" has the ingredients of a human sort of picture. It is a story of the ordinary lives of ordinary factory workers—but it doesn't come off. The book, "F. O. B. Detroit," from which the picture was adapted, is a story of a man who is a victim of the machine age, but the picture is more of a character study of a young cloddish who doesn't want to work in a factory, but who is in love with a girl who is in love with a man who is in love with his family responsibilities.

"This might have been good, too, except that it is an up-and-down affair with occasional human and humorous touches alternating with obvious hum. The picture would be more believable also if Joel McCrea were a little less condescending about playing him. He gives the impression of being a bit self-satisfied just playing at being an unsophisticated youth and that he's really Joel McCrea, movie star, and doesn't want you to forget it. Ellen Drew is good, but she is becoming a good actress and plays well, although her role is occasionally a bit too monotonously pitched. Eddie Bracken is best of the cast in a supporting character job. The picture has too many stilted, melodramatic humors and ill-fitting comedy have been included to make it more than a picture of average merit.

"Pot o' Gold"—A-1 "Pot o' Gold"—A-1 "Maybe you like 'Pot o' Gold' on the radio. Maybe you fervently hope that Captain James Roosevelt will do himself proud as a movie producer. Maybe you want Jimmy Stewart's last picture before army life took him from the movies to be an outstanding one. You will be disappointed but the Roosevelt production, "Pot o' Gold" Although it pretends to be a big-time movie, the story and production are no better than those of a B picture. The picture is in double bill—things like "Too Many Blondes" and "Where Did You Get That Girl?" When you listen to "Pot o' Gold" on the radio, you just must know the telephone ringing and your winning some money. But they don't even give dishes with the picture.

"People vs. Dr. Kildare"—A-1 "People vs. Dr. Kildare"—A-1 "You just must know how happens to young Dr. Kildare every waking hour of his life you'd better hurry up and see 'People vs. Dr. Kildare' For the love of the picture. The picture is a trouble again—but, as usual, he's out of it before the end. This is acted in usual vein by the Kildare regulars, with Mrs. Ayres (troubled) Lionel Barrymore (gruff but kindly) Laraine Day (sweet and sympathetic), Alma Kruger (gruff but kindly feminine version), and Marie Blake (dumb-bell comedy) with Red Skelton, who has joined the staff of the hospital to fill the other comedy vacancy left by Nat Pendleton who doesn't seem to be around any more. Bonnie Grindle, the erstwhile child star, has grown into a lovely young actress of considerable dramatic talent. She's mixed up with Dr. Kildare's current profession, but the picture is as familiar as your best friend's secrets but it's a good formula for the lower portion of a double bill.

"The Short Story"—A-1 "The Short Story"—A-1 "The Short Story" more to be desired than a "Too Many Blondes" or some other such thing is a collection of shorts, such as that accompanying "Blood and Sand" and "Reaching for the Sun." A "March of Time" edition, intelligently discussing Japanese war aims and Chinese misdeeds, an interesting feature with "Masters of Deceit," Kieran, Levant and Adams aided by Anna Neagle, a delightful new Disney cartoon and a newswell, as well as a short Bob Hope comedy, made a varied and entertaining program. The Hope comedy is a museum piece, having been made in 1935, but it's inter-

THE GOSPEL—In The New Bible Text

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO ST. LUKE Chapter 14, Verses 16 to 24

"A certain man gave a great supper, and he invited many. And he sent his servant at supper time to bid those invited to come, for everything is now ready. And they all with one accord began to excuse themselves. The first said to him, 'I have bought a farm, and I must go out and see it; I pray thee hold me excused.' And another said, 'I have bought five yokes of oxen, and I am on my way to try them; I pray thee hold me excused.' And another said, 'I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come.'"

By Rev. Dr. Edward H. Donno, S.M. General Secretary, Catholic Biblical Association of America. (Written for N. C. W. C. News Service)

The Gospel for the Second Sunday after Pentecost is taken from the Gospel according to St. Luke, Chapter 14, verses 16 to 24. The text is given here according to the revision which has recently been published.

It is presented without the numerical which, in the printed form, appear in the left-hand margin and refer to the verses in the old text. Moreover, certain words in the text below are in boldface, whereas they are not in boldface in the printed form of the revision. The boldface is employed here to show the places where the changes have been made from the old text of this particular Gospel. In the old text, italics were used for two purposes: (1) to indicate quotations from the Old Testament and (2) to indicate words which had been used to complete the thought in English, but for which there was no corresponding word in the Latin text. In the revision of the New Testament, quotations from the Old Testament are indicated rather than italicized. The second use which has been made of italics in the New Testament does not arise in the revision, for the additional words necessary in English expression by the thought are a real part of the translation, and should not be emphasized by the use of italics.

Full appreciation of the improvement in the new text can be had only by comparing the general sentence structure with that of the old text. In the Gospel there are two instances of the reversal of expressions which are becoming obsolete: "bring in hither" is changed to "bring in here," and "must needs" becomes simply "must." "Lord" in the Scriptures usually refers to God, or to Christ, especially as God. In common language it is used of nobility. The parallel here speaks of a "certain man" and gives him the ordinary title. These are translated with the modern equivalent "master" in the Latin version and "sir" in the English case.

Two Latin participles are retained to give more idiomatic English. "The servant returning, told these things to the lord" is changed to "The servant returned, and reported these things to his master." "The master of the house being angry, said..." is replaced by "The master of the house was angry and said..."

For an example of general simplification and the clarity of expression compare the revised text with the old text in the first part of the Gospel. Old text: "He sent his servant, at the hour of supper, to say to them that were invited, that they should come, for now all things are ready. And they began all at once to make excuse." New text: "He sent his servant at supper time to tell those invited to come, for everything is now ready. And they all with one accord began to excuse themselves."
