GIRLS COUS CAMP

By MARGERY BERNARD
The Girl Scouts of Troops 14 and 146 gaily set out on last Saturday morning for their week of fun and camping at Camp Immaculata in the Bristol Hills. During the week they will enjoy all the privileges of this modern and well-equipped 4-H Club Camp.

A large recreation hall with its huge fireplace and modern game room will be the center of activity while the large, outdoor, fresh water pool will be the high-point in the out-of-door program. Mr. John Maday who has been the director of the camp during this season has been retained to supervise craft work and aid with the camp program.

Miss Shirley Mack assisted by Geraldine McMann and Audrey Scott will have charge of the girls during swimming periods. Fr. Charles Mahoney celebrated Mass on Sunday in the camp chapel. Leader of the camp is Mrs. Roy Curtis, assisted by Mrs. Paul Scott, leader of Troop 144. Mrs. Walter Jamieson, chairman of the Girl Scout Committee is also spending the week with the girls and aiding in the camp program. Wednesday evening will be visitor's day for the girls when they will entertain their parents and friends.

The garden party held on the church lawn on August 9 has now been fully reported on and this affair has proved to be one of the most outstanding successes of the year. Approximately 500 supper were served during the supper hour and all booths were crowded during the entire evening.

The committee in charge deserves a great deal of credit not only for the actual work done on the lawn but also for building new booths which can now be used at future functions. The Rotary Society is also to be commended for their work in supervising the preparation of the supper.

NUN-EDUCATORS' CONFER ON RELIGIOUS TRAINING OF PRE-SCHOOL CHILD

WEST HARTFORD Conn. A group of educators, Sisters representing five communities of religious have been in conference during a six-week period this summer at St. Joseph College here.

The Conference was held to consider the problem of the psychological and educational aspects of the religious training of children. Attention has centered on the training of the pre-school child since all members are agreed that basic concepts of religion must be given in the first years of the child's life and are best given by the mother in the home.

The work of the Conference in its first sessions has been twofold. First, it has concerned itself with the experimental on the question of religious development, preparing a list of problems on which in-depth research should be done by Catholic colleges. Secondly, it has studied intensively the background and materials necessary for the preparation of teaching material for parents.

1,200 RETREATANTS OFFER MASS FOR SERVICE MEN

NOTRE DAME, Ind.—Concluding a three-day spiritual defense program, 1,200 Catholic laymen from all sections of the country dedicated Mass intentions Sunday to former retreatants now serving with the nation's military forces.

The occasion was the closing exercises of the twenty-fourth annual laymen's retreat held on the campus at the University of Notre Dame. It was conducted this year by the Rev. William P. Corcoran, C.S.C., assisted by almost the entire personnel of the Notre Dame mission band.

Father Corcoran patterned his retreat program after the national retreat program now in progress at the special request of many retreatants who are either eligible for military service or have members of their immediate families in training.

TRAFFIC TIP
Remember that 60 per cent of the persons killed are pedestrians.

College Students Hampered When Inducted Into Army

registered were students or professors in our colleges and universities. The writer of this paper was one of them. After considerable discussion, the authorities in charge of military training agreed to defer the service of all college men until July 1, 1941.

This was a wise provision, but it does not seem to have gone far enough. Why should the military training of men in college be deferred at all unless it be to avoid interruption of their college course? If such an interruption is inevitable for one year, it is not logical to suppose that it should be avoided altogether? The principle on which deferment is based remains the same, whether applied to one scholastic year or several.

The Association of American Colleges at its annual meeting in Pasadena, California, on January 10 and 11, 1941, suggested the deferment of college students for the rest of the scholastic year in which they are called to service. This suggestion is a recommendation to continue the present law.

The College and University Department of the National Catholic Educational Association, meeting in New Orleans, Louisiana, on April 11, 1941, advised the deferment of a college student until the completion of his course. Surely this is not asking too much; and unless our military and political leaders are very shortsighted, they must see the logic and wisdom of this stand.

Effects of Interruption
The future leaders of our country are being trained in our colleges and universities today. Interrupt their training, and you interrupt the flow of a vital defense product of the country, both in peace and in war.

Many students would never resume their studies. Many would return with the zeal and enthusiasm of their youth spent on the training field or battlefield.

Nor is it logical to suggest that the training of only some college students be continued without interruption, such as those engaged in the study of biology, chemistry, dentistry, engineering, geology, medicine and physics. Is the training of lawyers and other fields less important than their training in these? Who is going to determine when a particular field or subject is vital to the "national health and safety and interest?" Should the humanities be interrupted in times of crisis, while natural and applied sciences makes every possible progress? Is not the mental health of a nation just as important as its physical stamina?

Men will fight and bleed and die for an idea for a "philosophy of life." The dictator does not matter so much as what he represents. Our basic philosophy of life is called Democracy. We are being asked to sacrifice ourselves, our lives and our money to preserve it. Unless we are on our guard, not many moons will have passed before our young men and women will have forgotten the full meaning of the word, Democracy, and what this word connotes.

"Problems of Democracy"
Wise Confucius said, "Learning without thought is labor without learning; thought without learning is perilous." There are courses on the curricula of some of our institutions of learning, both on the secondary and the collegiate level, entitled "Problems of Democracy." Democracy, then, is a problem! These problems are not likely to be solved in the chemistry or physics laboratory. To teach a child to read is to put a dangerous weapon in his hands. In like manner, to teach men how to make guns and gadgets, bombs and airplanes, poison gas and anesthetics, tanks and automobiles and not to teach them how, when and why to make use of these things, is to thwart the purpose of all scientific endeavor.

Let us bear in mind the fact that we are not asking exemption, but deferment. We are not interfering with college men as "better than anyone else." We simply believe that their legislators should beware lest they impede the flow of well-trained leaders of thought, who will be extremely vital to the health, safety and interest of our country when peace comes, as come it must.
