CAMPING MEMORIES

By MARGERY BEENARD
The Girl Scouts of Troop No. 143 and Troop No. 144 have returned from their week's sojourn at Camp Immaculate in the Adirondacks with many happy memories of the good times enjoyed. Craft work, swimming, hiking, badminton, marshmallow roasts, and many other activities filled each day, and the week sped by all too rapidly.
The following girls attended the camp: Audrey Scottie, Eileen Jamieson, Marie Stuart, Catherine Stuart, Betty Resch, Jane Resch, Patricia Curtis, Geraldine McManis, Ruth Hyde, Patricia Morrison, Doris Morrison, Marian Huffer, Joan Nichols, Elizabeth Duff, Shirley Friedman, Genevieve Goodline, Rosemary Hogan, Theresa Korschak, Helen McDonald, Charlotte McGovern, Gertrude Melville, Margaret Melville, Shirley Morton, Regina O'Brien, Rita Smith, Mary Addley, Betty Ann Bryan, Shirley Tirpanach, Rita Airpach, Rita Heloftus, and Winifred Winifred.
Loftus. Camp leaders were: Mrs.
Roy Curtis, Mrs. Walter Jamieson and Mrs. Paul Scottie. Misses Shirley Mark and Marjorie Springer were in charge of the swimming.

The Boy Scouts of Troop No. 13 are planning a pre-school picnic for next Sunday at No. 3 picnic grounds at Geneva Valley Park.
Competitive games will occupy the boys' time during the afternoon and in the evening they will be served a casserole supper by their mothers. The fathers who serve on the troop committee enjoyed the week end of August 22nd at the camping grounds at Honeyoye Falls.

A merchandise club is due to start soon at the Immaculate. Miss Virginia Walker is chairman for the coming year and many who were in the former group have already signed up for this one. It is hoped that as many of the women of the parish as possible will take part in this club and make it the success it was last year.

done. These remakes are just old girls in new hats.
Here is just a partial list of recent pictures that are remakes of movies that have gone before.
"Manpower" is a considerably revamped version of the Henry Fonda-Pat O'Brien movie. "Slim Whatling in the Dark" was made in the movie before "The Sons of Gorn" over its existence to an Alme MachMahon movie. "The Merry Frinks" "Passage to Hong Kong" was titled "The Second Floor Murder" when Loretta Young made it in 1930. Previous to that it had been made under the title of "The Agony Column" in silent days.
"Moon over Miami" is a musical version of another Loretta Young movie, "Three Blind Mice," which was released only two or three years ago. Jane Withers stepped into Simone Simon's shoes when she made "A Very Young Lady." The title film of the Simon film was "Girl's Dormitory." "Billy the Kid Sunny" "No No Nanette" and "Bachelor Daddy" have all been filmed before.
"Blood and Sand" was Tyrone Power's attempt to follow the early success of Rudolph Valentino in the same part. "Singapore Woman" switched the locale of Bette Davis' "Dangerous" but the story remained the same. "The Trial of Mary Dugan" was made this year with Laraine Day and in 1930 with Norma Shearer. Although the hero was a lion tamer in a carnival, "Night of the Living Dead" was one of a picture. "The Way of All Flesh" is the current title and The Penalty "Sea Wolf" was made three times before the current version. "Scotland Yard: Here Comes Happiness" "Six Hopkins" "Sleepers West" "The Things Called Love" "The Great Mr. Nobody" "The Case of the Black Parrot" "The Thief of Bagdad" "Honeymoon for Three" "Divey" "Let's Go South of Suz" "The manace of the Rio Grande" just a few more movies of the year that were once movies of some other year. The Fredric March-Betty Ford picture "Victory" was once "Dangerous Paradise" with Nancy Carroll and Richard Arlen and further back still it served Thomas Meighan, Agnes Ayres and Lon Chesney "Back Street" once starred Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer in the roles more recently played by Margaret Sullivan and Charles Boyer. "Strawberry Blonde" is a jazzed-up James Cagney version of a Gary Cooper picture, "One Sunday Afternoon." In the next few weeks you will be seeing several others. "When Ladies Meet" once starred Ann Harding, Robert Montgomery and Myrtle Loy in the roles now played by Greer Garson, Robert Taylor and Joan Crawford. "Aloma of the South Seas" with Dorothy Lamour was once a movie vehicle for Gilda Gray "Shepherd of the Hills" has been on the screen twice before the current version "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" gives Spencer Tracy a role played previously by both Fredric March and John Barrymore. Jeanette MacDonald is currently playing "Smilin' Through" which has been made before with Norma Shearer and Norma Talmadge. And there are undoubtedly many more new versions of old pictures in the process of production.
It looks as if what Hollywood needs is some fresh thinking. It's so easy to go to the vaults and bring out an old success. But the fact that a picture was once a hit Havoc Wrought by Cyclone, Deluge In Bengal Mission Told by Nun

A cyclone and deluge lay waste the work of years in a Catholic mission in Bengal according to an account received here last week. By the Rev. John St. Randall, Diocesan Director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith.
One of the Sisters of Holy Angela's Convent, Ramganessia Mission, Bengal India, writes:
"Today we face problems akin to Adam's when he emerged from Paradise or Noah's when he flung aside the doors of his ark. Last week a cyclone twisted through our mission and the ruins it left were washed away by a deluge. At the poverty stricken homes of mud and bamboo melted the intricate Christianity crumbled unshattered from the meretricious shams. When they ceased the mission for help they found us, like themselves, destitute.
"Our convent is as if bombed.
The wind dug the peaks of our verandah three hundred yards. It ripped away the tin roof and beat it back upon itself. It lifted most stray objects and it banged them to ruin—cracked bottles and casserole oil on the verandah we had pleaded with friends at home to send them away. The school students we had favored with school supplies we had accumulated for the poor natives; and as it banged and beat and tore almost shattered our holy host.

it back upon itself. It lifted most
pleaded with friends at home to
send them away. The school stu-
shattered our holy host.
Adam's when he emerged from
bamboo melted the intricate Christianity crumbled unshattered from
found us, like themselves, destitute.
"Our convent is as if bombed.
The wind dug the peaks of our
it back upon itself. It lifted most
pleaded with friends at home to
