Card. Hayes Memorial School Dedication Set

NEW YORK — Four bishops in the New York Archdiocese and a large number of the members of the Monsignori in colorful choir dress will assist Most Reverend Francis J. Spellman, D.D., Archbishop of New York, next Monday, (September 8th), in the dedication and formal opening of the Cardinal Hayes Memorial High School, new $3,000,000 structure for Catholic boys at 153rd Street and the Grand Concourse, Bronx.

Mayor La Guardia also will speak from the platform of the new Brady auditorium to an assemblage of 1,500 invited guests.

Archbishop To Speak

In the procession with the Archbishop will be Bishops Auxiliary Stephen J. Donahue, DD. and J. Francis A. McIntyre, D.D., of New York, Bishop John F. O'Hara, C.S.C., Military delegate and Bishop Benaventure Broderick, D.D., of the Francis Scharvier Home. There will also be in the procession the faculties of the Cardinal Hayes High School, the Cathedral College and St. Joseph's Seminary, Dunwoodie, and a delegation of the pastors and assistant priests of the diocese. Very Reverend Zacheus Maher, S.J., American Assistant to the Father General of the Society of Jesus, will give the dedication address and Archbishop Spellman is expected to speak briefly at the end of the program.

The blessing of the building will start at 2:30 in the chapel on the 4th floor. Thence the procession will move to the inside portal of the first floor where the Archbishop will recite special dedicatory prayers. The procession will then precede the Archbishop as he blesses the outside walls, sprinkling holy water as he walks, after which it will re-enter the building and proceed to the auditorium where the Archbishop will attach to the wall over the entrance an antique carved ivory crucifix which has hung in the Chancery office for nearly two decades.

Within the auditorium the exercises, starting at 3 o'clock, will open with a presentation of the national colors by Willard A. Balcom Post of the American Legion and presentation of the papal colors, yellow and white by the Archbishop Hughes Assembly of the Knights of Columbus.

Following the singing of the Star Spangled Banner by Miss Jessica Dragonette, the Archbishop will present the keys to the high school to Very Rev. Philip J. Furlong, principal of the new school who will respond briefly before presenting Mayor La Guardia. After the Mayor's talk, Miss Dragonette will sing Shubert's Ave Maria, following which, Father Maher will deliver the dedication address. Archbishop Spellman will close the exercises with a brief talk and blessing.

Cinema Comments

er — a character study of a boy with wanderlust — weakly adapted to make it an episodic movie which loses much of the appeal of the novel. John Brahm, who directed such tightly-knit movies as "Let Us Live" and "Escape to Glory," seems to be at a loss to build any smoothly sustained continuity in the rambling story, so that although individual scenes are handled with skill, the total result seems jerkily disconnected. The acting is all that could be desired, with Henry Fonda's sensitive and understanding portrayal of the boy leading the way for good performances by Joan Bennett, Ona Munson and Warren William. Through it all the symbolic wild geese fly. How they do get around!

"Kisses for Breakfast"—B— A good comedy idea gone wrong . . turned into something that veers from slapstick to annoyingly suggestive bedroom farce, treated with the subtlety of a good, swift kick. Dennis Morgan, more handsome than ever in a new mustache, is even less able as a farceur. Such usually welcome people as Una O'Connor, Jerome Cowan, Louise Beavers and Jane Wyatt are floored by their material. And the picture deals with a situation that could have been cleared up early in the picture by a simple explanation. How much time would be saved in movies if explanations were only made — but then how many movies would not be made.

"The Nifty Nineties"—The latest, and decidedly one of the most delightful, of the Disney cartoons.

"When Ladies Meet"—Intelligent and adult comedy drama which explores the eternal triangle again. Handled with good taste on the whole, although there are one or two sequences that approach the suggestive. Not quite up to the original picture, which starred Ann Harding, Robert Montgomery, Myrna Loy, Frank Morgan and Alice Brady, due principally to Robert Taylor, who mugs outrageously in an embarrassing attempt to play light comedy. Herbert Marshall, too, is stiff and unbelievable. But Greer Garson's work is warm and sympathetic, Spring Byington is an adorable scatterbrain and Jean Crawford continues to improve as an actress. The film moves slowly, depending on its dialogue rather than any action, but it's mostly bright dialogue and when it is spoken by experts like the Misses Garson, Byington, and occasionally Miss Crawford, it makes the picture one of the good one of the season.

"Dr. Kildare's Wedding Day" — A-2.—Tossed together—apparently in a hurry—to serve one purpose, the elimination of Laraine Day from the series. The producers have decided that Miss Day is ready for bigger things than Kildare pictures so they kill her off in this. Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore, Red Skelton, Alma Kruger and the rest of the Kildare regulars survive.

Now in Closing—Jay Golden's idea of double-featuring a movie and a real, honest-to-goodness play will be tried out next week. The play is one of the attractions, so capably done by the Rochester Summer Theater Company in Avon this season.

(John Springer's Movie Memory is presented over WSAY every Monday morning at 11 o'clock. This week's Movie Memory will be the Bette Davis-Henry Fonda movie, "Jezebel." Also, during this program, Springer will interview Will R. Corris, of the Auditorium, on Rochester's coming legitimate theater season.)

MILWAUKEE (NC)—The Catholic University of America and other Catholic institutions were remembered in the will of the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward J. Blackwell, former pastor of St. Thomas Aquinas' Church here, who died August 5.

The will, which was made in 1919, left the entire estate to Monsignor Blackwell's sister, Margaret, but instructed her to make, either during her lifetime or in her will, bequests of $5,000 to the Catholic University for the establishment of a scholarship for an English-speaking student of Irish lineage; $1,000 each to St. Thomas Aquinas parish, the Little Sisters of the Poor, the House of the Good Shepherd and St. Vincent's Infant Asylum; and $500 to the St. Thomas Aquinas parish school fund toward a perpetual membership for members of the Blackwell family.

QUERIES and REPLIES

What is the meaning of the various colored vestments worn by your priests in religious services?

Modern Psychology has much to say about the symbolism of color. But the Church wise with the wisdom of her Divine Founder, has been applying the principles of Modern Psychology in this matter for two thousand years.

The vestments worn by the priest whilst conducting religious services in our churches are of five colors: white, black, red, green, and violet. As the earth is clothed with lilies, roses, green herbs, dead branches, and dark soil, so the Church clothes her ministers with these colors according to the truths she wishes to convey to her children.

White is the color of light and therefore symbolical of the luster and glory of Eternal life. For this reason too it is significant of joy, holiness, innocence, and purity. White accordingly is the color of the day for most of the feasts of our Lord—Christmas, Easter, Corpus Christi, Ascension — of the virgins and confessors, and of our Lady.

Red is the color of fire and blood significant therefore of love and self-sacrifice. As the color of flame and blood, red represents the consuming fire of the Holy Ghost and is characteristic therefore of Pentecost, of the Sacrament of Confirmation, and of the feasts of the Martyrs. Red and purple were formerly the colors in which kings and princes were clothed. Red-purple consequently answers as a symbol of princely power and dignity. For this reason red-purple is is the distinctive color of the highest dignitaries of the Church, that is, of the Cardinals who in consequence are called Patres purpurati.

Green is the symbol of hope. In nature green is the sign of life and therefore becomes in the Higher Order the symbol of grace and glory which constitutes the chief object of Christian hope. Since Sunday is par excellence the Lord's Day and all our hope is in Him, green is the liturgical color for nearly all the Sundays of the year.

Violet belongs to the subdued colors. Inasmuch as its purplish tinge resembles the dark grey of ashes it inculcates the earnest spirit of penance and is the proper color for Lent and Advent; but insofar as it is like the dark coloring of the modest violet which conceals itself to human eye amid the grass of field, and dale, and wooded hill, breathing its fragrant perfume to the Creator alone it may also be taken as an emblem of humility, of holy retirement, of subdued sorrow, of gentle longing and sighing for Heaven For this reason the preliminary part of Baptism and the Sacraments of Penance and Extreme Unction call for the violet stole.

Black and white are the extremes of the brightness series of sensations. Black is characteristic of darkness and therefore a suitable symbol for death. The wearing of black garments is prescribed for the clergy. This is meant to remind them constantly of their obligation to lead a life that is dead to the world and given wholly to God. The Liturgy for the departed naturally calls for black From the fact that the clergy are vested in black for Requiem Masses came the custom of putting on mourning for the dead. Black finally has a sobering effect and tends to lead the mind to dwell on the eternal verities. (From the pen of Father Richard Felix, O.S.B., Defenders of the Faith, Conception, Missouri).

EDITORIAL

When elections roll around a lot of people say, "Shucks, why should I vote . . . my one vote cannot do much." Those thousands and thousands no doubt know what one vote can do. It was one vote 303 to 202 that will keep the "boys" in the army another eighteen months.

God rewards a simple spirit or submission to the clergy, for the honor done to them is done to Him. Your virtue is unreal, your faith in danger, if you fail in this.
