

Mission Unit Opens Waste Paper Drive

With Office of Production Management officials predicting a 23 per cent shortage in 1942's paper production, the Rochester Chamber of Commerce has organized a committee, headed by Charles H. Vayo for the conservation of waste paper in Rochester.

As part of the committee's work they have approved the present drive for old papers being conducted by the Clergy Veteran Unit of the Catholic Student Mission Crusade.

The United States Office of Price Administration and Civilian Defense has estimated that in 1942 defense needs will require almost two-thirds of the paper products produced in this country. This demand will cut the use of paper for civilian needs unless paper products manufacturers can draw raw material from another source, namely waste paper conserved by civilians.

In a recent radio talk Roland B. Woodward, executive vice-president of the Chamber, pointed out the various uses of paper in the defense scheme. Among its uses he listed the making of blue prints, the packing of machine parts for shipment to assembly lines, and the enormous amount of office paper material used by defense headquarters.

The unit's drive, which is under way among 22 of the Catholic Grammar schools, has listed the first three Saturdays in December as collection dates. Martin Moll Jr. and David Lawless Jr. are co-directors of the campaign. Father John S. Randall is advisor.

Anyone having waste paper who would like to cooperate with the Clergy Veteran Unit, if they call a nearby Catholic School, arrangements will be made to pick the paper up.
