On and Around Broadway

New York was as lively and carefree as ever last week. Theaters played to standing rooms nightclubs and hotels did a heavy business, the department stores - all set with their Christmas displays were swarming.

Times Square on Saturday night looked something like Rochester during the Santa Claus Parade. A large percentage of the mass of people who moved slowly along Broadway were uniformed men - soldiers and sailors all wearing their best happy-go-lucky, "let's-have-ourselves-a-time" expressions. Sundays, back in Rochester, came the terrible news and reports that the uniformed men were being rounded up and sent back to their posts. It's funny to think of Times Square without the soldiers and sailors out for a big night. The street must look considerably different now than it did a week ago.

I got an advance look at "Claudia" the play which comes to the Auditorium on December 15 in New York. It's a grand show - sparkling with the most delightful comedy, but with its undercurrent of poignant drama as well. It's a clean show - it deals with a thoroughly adult subject . . . the awakening to reality of a wife who is not yet a woman . . . but it is always done realistically and in the best of taste. It's a play that should have something for every type of theatrical taste and it may very possibly be the best-liked play that the Auditorium presents this season.

Another show caught in New York was the recently-opened "Sons of Fun". It's Olsen and Johnson's successor to the fabulous "Helzapoppin" and it's wilder, madder and more elaborate than the first. Carmen Miranda, the Brazilian bombshell, is in the "Sons of Fun" company and Ella Logan scores a personal success, but, as always, it is Olsen and Johnson themselves who completely dominate the frequently-hilarious proceedings.

An unusual presentation in New York last week was "Proud Heritage," a drama starring Jacques Cartier, the famous dancer-monologuist. Cartier, a sort of masculine combination of Ruth Draper and Ruth St. Denis, creates his illusions well and many of his dance scenes are striking.

Another "different" show is "The Silver Screen," the production at Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe. The show - a regular nostalgic revel - features such one-time greats as Carlyle Blackwell, Betty Compson, Gilda Grey, Nita Naldi, Della Lind, Joe Howard and others, with the biggest hit scored by Charles King, star of "Broadway Melody" and other early talkies. King literally stopped the show at the performance we caught and it was good to see him Charlie King, still a young man and still a fine entertainer, coming back into his own after many lean years.

As usual, New York had its share of celebrities in town. We sat on the radio program of the lovely Adrienne Ames and chatted with her for awhile after the show. Adrienne is very much occupied at present with her radio and television broadcasts, (she is NBC's "Miss Television of 1941"), with her job as Chairman of the Entertainment Committee of the Home Legion, with lectures and guest-star appearances. She expects to start rehearsals of a Broadway play late in the winter. Also talked for quite some time to the very beautiful Nancy Carroll - long this department's favorite actress - and made tentative plans for a get-together next New York visit.

Talked to John Golden, the producer of such hits as "Lightnin'".
