Reproduced above is a painting of St. Francis of Assisi, in the possession of St. Mary's College, Indiana, which experts have attributed to Giotto. The painting was presented to the college by Cardinal Satolli, first Apostolic Delegate to the United States, who visited the school in 1887. Sister M. M. Telega, C. S. C., President, says authorities have long known that the painting was of considerable worth, but that no valuation could be placed upon it until its authenticity was firmly established. (N. C. W.)
