POPE CALLS FOR SPECIAL SOCIAL JUSTICE IN WAR

By MSGR. KNRICO PUCCIT VATICAN CITY .- (NC-Radio)-Relations between different classes nations between different classes: and ranks must be guided by jus-tice and animated by mutual re-spect and affection particularly "in this dark hour of fierce discords and sanguinary arruggles among men," His Holiness Pope Pius XII said last week.

The Pope spoke at the presenta-tion of good wishes by the Roman nobility.

In reply to an address on behalf of the nobility by Prince Marcantonic Colonna, Assistant at the Papal Throne, the Holy Fathersaid the title of the Roman Patricians, successors of the mobility of ancient Rome, has added splender today beause a Walt-Link or ancient Rome, has added splen-dor today because a Patricias Re-manerium today is protector of Heme and of the Church as well. In our times, he said, the Roman nobility is called upon to defend the honor of the Church in the practice of the moral, religious and social virtues.

COLLEGE USED FOR WAR WOUNDED Mexico Law Should Ban Anti-Religious Study

By Charles Betico

MEXICO CITY—(N.C.)—By a majority of 95 votes the Chamber of Deputies approved the proposed Organic Law on Public Education which would constitute the regulation of rublic Education which would Article 3, 31 (Section 1) 73 (Section XX and XXV) and 123 (Section XII) of the Federal Constitution. The Bill was submitted to the Congress by President Manuel Avila Camacho on Dec. 25, and the Chamber passed it by an overwhelming majority three 4 days later.

The term "Socialist," which has eaused as much trouble since the amendment of Article 3 in 1822, would be included if the Bill bewauld be included if the Bill becemes the Law, since no step has,
heen taken to amend or rescind the amendment. In the previous Education Law, however, there were definitely anti-religious provisions, and the official textbooks, eempulsery in private as well as public schools, were communiation in lone and purpose. These two factors—extremist interpretations of socialist education—have practically caused the collapse of the whoel system is Maxico, have been the cause of wide dissension and many deaths, and have not helped to reduce the tremendously high fillteracy rate. Illiteracy rate.

Doubt as to Law's Effect Some altempt to placate opponents of the "socialist" school is evident in the proposed law, but there is considerable doubt as to whether anything short of actual amendment of Article 3 and the elimination of the objectionable "socialist education" clause, will meet with enthusiastic approval in large sections of the populace. On the other hand, it is understand-able why the present Government, might prefer a more liberal inter-pretation of the clause rather than risk more internal controversy over actual amendment of the Constitution, The present Bill says that "subject to the Constitution," education in official schools shall be socialist and shall exclude the "teaching or and shall exclude the "teaching or propagation of any religious creed or doctrine"; that, without infring-ing up the guarantees contained in Articles 6, 7, 9 and 24 of the Constitution, "fanaticism and prej-udices" are to be combatted.

But it further provides that legally "fanaticism and prejudices" are not to be interpreted as meaning "the profession of religious creeds and the practice of cere-monies, devotions or acts of wor-ship, respectively," which are "reahip, respectively," which are "re-alized in conformity with the laws." Teachers are prohibited from attacking the beliefs or licit practices of their pupils "on the pretext of combating fanaticism and prejudices." The Bill also pro-hibits coeducation in the last wa-prades of the primary schools exgrades of the primary schools ex-cept where local conditions lack of facilities and teachers, smallness of population, etc. make it difficult to maintain separate schools.

In presenting the Bill to Con-In presenting the Bill to Congress, President Avila Camacho said that the first step must be te "define with precision the ideological sense of Article 3" because the "generality of terms" makes such interpretation indispensable. This vagueness, he said, had permitted an unjustifiable interpretation since "accidism in itself, is a general formula, an attitude of the human conscience with respect to society, the most constant characteristic of which is based on the affirmation of the preeminence of affirmation of the preeminence of the advantages and interests of the group over those of the isolat-ed individual."

"But," the President added, "it is not justifiable to pretend that there may be associated with the general formula of Article 3. certain qualifications which by their very eminciation undermine our fundamental institutions. The Ex-ecutive Power, under my charge, considers the socialism proclaimed by Article 3 to be the socialism fashioned by the Mexican Revolution."

An interpretation must not be given to Article 3, the President said, which would maintain that "public education, in combatting fanaticism and its prejudices, seeks to establish a school of anti-re-ligious type." "Such interpreta-tion," the President added, "is contrary to the express text of the Constitution itself which, in Article 24, categorically consecrates freedom of religion."

Finds Irish Neutrality Not Due to 'Hatred of British'

LONDON—Irish neutrality in no unless the Irish Government were way stems from hatred of the British, as many assert; on the other vented the youth from consing the hand, Irish opinion is prepender-anily opposed to Ritler and in favor of an Allied victory.

This judgment was expressed by the Rev. Dr. John Heenan, noted British radio priest, in a series of broadcasts to North America for-

Father Heenan stressed that, in Father Heenan stressed that, in spite of past history and former hoatility between the British and Irish, Premier De Valera said to him that "relations between Great British and Ireland have never been more cordial or friendly in 700 years." He reported that Irish noutrality is head on a particular. 700 years." He reported that Irish neutrality is based on a realistic point of view. The Irish are not at all convinced that use of Irish ports by the British would be vantageous to the British, the priest said, and they are definitely certain that such an action would bring destruction and perhaps demolition of the ports and their cities by the German Luttwalle.

Advantage by Neutrality

Advantage in Neutrality

Furthermore, Father Heenan de-clared, the Irish feel it is to Brit-ain's advantage to have Ireland neutral. "If Eire were at war she would need a strong British garri-son," he added. "If she were fight-ing officially by the side of Great Britain white the injustices of the North remain the feelings of the Quito.—The first centenary of North remain, the feelings of the the establishment of Salesians in Trish people would be so outraged that British troops would be kept solamn ceremonies at which His very busy within the country."

Doubt Motives Are Christian

However, Father Heenan added, the Irish are by no means in agreement as to Great Britain's allegedrole as a "Christian crusader."
Many, he said, are "unimpressed by the Christianity of the United States and of England." "We have to admit," he said, "that the overwhelming majority, both in your country and ours, do not enter a church from one year's end to the

that these Irishmen express grave doubts that the democracies are fighting for Christianity."

The great Irish leaders, he said, the Irish are by no means in agree-

The great Irish leaders, he said, would not hesitate a moment in actively engaging in the war if they thought that "to fight in this war against Germany were a Christian duty."
