Scouts Given Ad Altare Dei Awards At Geneva Rite

By Mary Jane Moran

GENEVA—Faithful service at the altar of five Catholic Boy Scouts here was rewarded when they were presented the Ad Altare Dei Award, Scout Sunday, Feb. 8 at the second annual vesper service in St. Stephen's Church. Four other Scouts received the Eagle award.

Presentations were made by the Rev. Raymond Nolan, Catholic chaplain of the Finger Lakes Council of Boy Scouts, who directed the service and delivered the sermon for the occasion.

Recipients of the Ad Altare Dei Awards were: Alan Guard, John Skinner, John Lawler, James Roberts and Richard Walsh. Guard, who is at present at Notre Dame University, received his award in absentia.

Win Eagle Rating
New Eagle Scouts are James Spengler and Donald Smith, Troop 31, Canandaigua, and Gerald Reagen and Robert Smith, Troop 8, Geneva.

"Scouts everywhere are offered an unusual opportunity for service" said Father Nolan in his sermon. He recalled seeing recently a picture of General MacArthur surrounded by a troop of Philippine Scouts.

"In fact," Father Nolan continued, "in the American Army, men who have had Scouting training are forging ahead." He urged the boys to be proud of their scouting. "We expect more from boys who have had the opportunity of this organized recreation than from those who have not.

Analyses Scout Oath

"A few minutes ago you recited the Scout Oath," continued the Chaplain, who analyzed the first part "physically strong," and the second part, "mentally awake."

He said, "we expect to find the unusual student, and the leaders in a scholastic way among the Scouts. From 'morally straight,' we expect the Scout should exemplify the virtue of personal purity. The Boy Scout, if he is true to his oath, will regulate his thoughts and actions as well as the God-given gift of speech against which so many people offend. The tender devotion to the Mother of God should result in a holy spirit so necessary to a well ordered life."

Present for the impressive service were many members of the Council's executive board and members of the Geneva District committee, together with parents and friends of the Scouts.

Assisting were a number of scoutmasters, Scout Executive John Smith, Eugene J. Marshall and Daniel Quigley as ushers. Jimmy Lynch presided at the organ.

CATHOLIC CRITIC WINS FRENCH FICTION PRIZE

VICHY.—The Goncourt Prize for 1941, it is reported from Paris, goes to Henri Pourrat, Catholic critic and fiction writer, for his book Vent de Mars (March Wind). The 57-year-old author won the fiction Grand Prize of the French Academy in 1931. All of his books express the poetry of the folklore of his native Auvergne, the beauty of its landscapes and the industry of its artisans, and are characterized by sanity of thought as well as a robust art and extreme purity of style. The 1940 Goncourt Prize is still held in reserve.

IMMACULATE, Ithaca

P. T. A. HEARS SURGEON

By MRS. W. P. KLINKO

ITHACA — Dr. Ethan Flagg Butler, head surgeon at Biggs Memorial Hospital spoke before the Immaculate Conception Parent-Afternoon, Feb. 12 at the school.

Doctor Butler in an interesting and picturesque manner described the journey to Serbia of an American Red Cross Unit in World War I. He related the trials that they had to undergo in arranging their work in the 14th Reserve Hospital and of the lack of adequate supplies and personnel needed to carry on the work of caring for about 2,000 patients.

The courage and fortitude of the 12 nurses who were a part of the unit received Dr. Butler's praise. He said they lived up to the highest conception of American nurses. During the typhus epidemic, nine of them contracted the disease but all recovered.

The customs of the Serbs came in for colorful description by the speaker and even though their stay in Serbia had been hard and filled with tragedy, it was felt that perhaps there was also a brighter side.

Doctor Butler holds the rank of Lieutenant Colonel and is now awaiting a call to return to the Army.

Mrs. John F. Oberlin introduced the speaker and both the Rev. Paul Cuddy and the Rev. Robert Kress expressed their appreciation to Dr. Butler for his interesting lecture.

Father Kress led community singing and the meeting was adjourned after a short business session.

The February Party was held on Feb. 12 at the Parish Hall under the sponsorship of the P. T. A. and was directed by co-chairmen Mrs. Ray Van Orman and Mrs. Edward Barron.
