

Pope's Jubilee Sees Interest Rising For Just, Lasting Peace

NAVY SERVICE CALLS. His Excellency, Bishop Kearney confers with the Rev. John V. Loughlin, former professor of education and Librarian at St. Bernard's Seminary, before the latter's departure to take up duties as Lieutenant Junior Grade in the U. S. Navy.

St. Bernard's Librarian Joins Navy As Chaplain

Fifteenth chaplain from the Rochester Diocese to enter the nation's armed forces and third to join the Navy is the Rev. John F. Loughlin, who was professor of Education and Librarian at St. Bernard's Seminary prior to his appointment.

'Social Justice' Suspends Publication

WASHINGTON (NC)—Social Justice magazine has ceased publication and has abandoned the second-class mail permit granted it more than six years ago. E. Perrin Schwartz, President of Social Justice Publishing Company and editor of the magazine, informed Postmaster General Frank C. Walker yesterday.

The Postmaster General immediately issued an order stating that "now, therefore, the publisher, owner and editor of the publication Social Justice having abandoned formally the second-class mail privileges accorded it, it is hereby ordered that the authorization of admission of Social Justice to the second-class mail privileges under the Act of Mar. 3, 1917, as amended, is herein and hereby revoked."

At the same time, the Post Office Department made public a telegram from the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin of Royal Oak, Mich., to the Postmaster General which read:

"I approve the action of the publisher-owner of Social Justice

WASHINGTON—(NC) As the world prepares to mark the silver episcopal jubilee of His Holiness Pope Pius XII, observers here believe they see in some recent developments increasing eagerness and determination on the part of the American people to "win the peace" as well as the war.

The Holy Father's jubilee has a striking significance, since the Pontiff's reign has been marked in a pre-eminent degree by his concern for peace. Pope Pius XII worked unflinchingly to prevent the outbreak of war. When these efforts proved fruitless he began the unceasing expenditure of himself in mitigating the sufferings of those bearing the burden of war. At the same time, he holds out to all mankind a program of points which he asserts must obtain if the nations of the world are to have a just and lasting peace.

The United States has rolled up its sleeves to win a war which it long tried to avert. The war must be won, and it will take the united effort of all if victory is to come soon, and, therefore, with the minimum of suffering and loss. Despite what has really been amazing speed, the United States has geared itself to present-day war with such a lack of show that only now are people beginning to realize the significance of an "all out" effort. There is reason to believe that the impact of this mobilization will bring Americans to the determination to win the war as quickly as possible, and to see that the peace that follows is a just one, so that the "all out effort" will not be called for soon again, if ever.

Make Americans Realize

The registration of male citizens between the ages of 18 and 45, the issuance of occupational questionnaires to registrants of other ages, indications that war requirements may compel the induction of registrants with dependents, the unavailability of automobile tires, the rationing of sugar and other commodities, the proposal to fix ceilings on prices, incomes, etc., are all things which have served to bring the American people to the realization that war today is indeed a serious thing. It is helping them to appreciate, too, that, however costly and irksome a war is to prosecute, it is many, many times more costly and unspeakably more irksome to lose.

In this connection the Brookings Institute in Washington has made public a report showing that "the German conquest of Belgium has been followed by a systematic exploitation of economic resources far more exhausting than the relatively unmethodical plundering of previous wars." "In addition to seizing large quantities of removable goods," says a press release from the Institute, "the Germans requisitioned all foreign securities and took control of finance, production and trade at the very moment of the invasion according to previously prepared plans. Control has been widely expanded until all economic life is now channeled towards the uses of the conquering power."

Priest Is Hero Of Train Wreck

JERSEY CITY.—A priest stood out as one of the heroes of the train wreck on the Hudson and Manhattan Railway between Jersey City and New York in which five were killed and more than 200 injured Sunday night.

The Rev. Albert Rooney, S. J., a professor at St. Peter's College here, was called with several other priests to the scene of the accident. He descended into the tunnel and administered the last Sacraments to a number of the victims.

Father Rooney was near collapse from inhaling smoke when he emerged after making his way beneath the length of an entire car, tilted precariously above him, to reach one victim. The Rev. John Fitzpatrick, S. J., Francis Shalloe, S. J., and Richard Voelkl, S. J., all of St. Peter's College, and the Rev. James P. McGrail, S. J., of Brooklyn Preparatory School, Brooklyn, a passenger on the train, assisted Father Rooney in ministering to the victims.

I will praise the Name of God with a canticle; and I will magnify Him with praise.—Psalms, 113:1

TENTH ANNIVERSARY and convocation of Rochester Diocesan Holy Name Union opened with Solemn Pontifical Mass, Tuesday, at Holy Redeemer Church, Rochester. Diocesan Holy Name Men Launch Membership Drive On Union's Anniversary

Every Holy Name man in the diocese was challenged to make his Society a "spiritual power" in the winning of victory and establishment of a just peace at the 10th annual Rochester Diocesan Holy Name Union convention in Rochester on Sunday.

Success of the Diocesan Union in carrying on specified diocesan-wide projects brought the Holy Name men commendation from His Excellency, Bishop Kearney, at the Solemn Pontifical Mass in Holy Redeemer Church and at the luncheon meeting attended by 300 delegates at Powers Hotel. The specified project for this year given the Diocesan Union by Bishop Kearney is the increasing of membership in the individual societies and the addition of more branches in the diocese.

The Mass of the Feast of the Holy Cross celebrated at Holy Redeemer Church by the Bishop drew a large attendance of Holy Name members.

Officers of Mass

Assisting the Bishop were: Assistant Priest, the Rt. Rev. Mgr. William M. Hart, V. G.; Deacons of Honor, the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Charles F. Shay and the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Joseph S. Cameron; Deacon, the Rev. William F. Stauder, spiritual director of the Union since its inception; Subdeacon, the Rev. Arthur P. Florack, assistant spiritual director; Masters of Ceremony, the Rev. Lawrence E. Casey and the Rev. Edward M. Lyons. Students of St. Andrew's Seminary filled the minor offices.

Vocation of the Holy Name man is to make the name of God known and respected by men, the Bishop said in his sermon as he recalled the foundation of the first Holy Name Society in the world.

Achievements of the Diocesan Holy Name Union in ten years of existence and successful carrying out of the Campaign for Decent Literature and the sale of the new Revised New Testament as specified projects were cited.

and one of the most powerful instruments for good in the Church. His Excellency said. He cited the "magnetic" spiritual leadership given the Union by its spiritual director, the able leadership of its officers and the sanctity of life of the members which exerts a powerful spiritual influence on the community.

Unique Session Held

An innovation at Diocesan Union conventions, the Solemn Pontifical Mass, the luncheon at the Powers Hotel and the panel discussions (including) rounded out a convention program agreed by the delegates to be "the most successful yet held."

"The Holy Name Society can become and should be a very vital feature in the parish," His Excellency declared at the luncheon meeting in Powers Hotel.

Stating that he was very much impressed with the success of the Holy Name Union in carrying out specified projects, the Bishop called upon them to campaign for all Catholic men in the diocese who are not now Holy Name members.

Purpose Cited

Active Catholic men in the United States are daily and weekly by commitments but they are not the object of getting laymen to join the Holy Name Society. The very definite project is to impress upon men that the Holy Name Society monthly Communion is a source of special blessing in the activities of the Society in that month. The Bishop expressed that the Holy Name Society should carry on its program by being respect for Holy Name, carrying on Catholic activities, providing parish cooperation and obtaining an understanding of the Pope's Encyclicals, all leading up to a program of Catholic Action.
