NAVY SERVICE CALLS. His Excellency, Bishop Kearney confers with the Rev. John V. Loughlin, former professor of education and Librarian at St. Bernard's Seminary, before the latter's departure to take up duties as Lieutenant Junior Grade in the U. S. Navy.

St. Bernard's Librarian Joins Navy As Chaplain

Fifteenth chaplain from the Rochester Diocese to enter the nation's armed forces and third to join the Navy is the Rev. John F. Loughlin, who was professor of Education and Librarian at St. Bernard's Seminary prior to his appointment.

'Social Justice' Suspends Publication

WASHINGTON, (NC) Social Justice magazine has ceased publication and has abandoned the second-class mail permit granted it more than six years ago. E. Perrin Schwartz, President of Social Justice Publishing Company and editor of the magazine, informed Postmaster General Frank J. Walker yesterday.

The Postmaster General immediately issued an order stating that "now, therefore, the publisher, owner and editor of the publication Social Justice having abandoned formally the second-class mail privileges accorded it, it is hereby ordered that the authorization of the Act of Mar. 3, 1879, as amended, is herein and hereby revoked." At the same time, the Post Office Department made public a telegram from the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin of Royal Oak, Mich., to the Postmaster General which read:

"I approve the action of the publisher-owner of Social Justice

WASHINGTON--(NC) As the world prepares to mark the silver episcopal jubilee of His Holiness Pope Pius XII, observers here believe they see in some recent developments increasing eagerness and determination on the part of the American people to "win the peace" as well as the war.

The Holy Father's jubilee has a striking timeliness, since the Pontiff's reign has been marked in a pre-eminent degree by his labors for peace. Pope Pius XII worked unflinchingly to prevent the outbreak of war. When these efforts proved fruitless he began the unflinching expenditure of himself to mitigate the sufferings of those bearing the burdens of war. At the same time, he holds out to all mankind a program of points which he asserts must obtain if the nations of the world are to have a just and lasting peace.

The United States has rolled up its sleeves to win a war which long tried to avert. The war must be won, and it will take the united effort of all. Victory is to come soon, and, therefore, with the minimum of suffering and loss. Despite what has really been amazing speed, the United States has geared itself to present-day war with such a lack of show that only now see people beginning to realize the significance of an "all out" effort. There is reason to believe that the impact of this realization will bring Americans to the determination to win the war as quickly as possible, and to see that the peace that follows is what one so that the "all out effort" will not be called for soon again.

Make Americans Realize The registration of male citizens between the ages of 18 and 65, the issuance of occupational questionnaires to registrants of other ages, indications that war requirements may compel the induction of registrants with dependents, the unavailability of automobile tires, the rationing of gas and other commodities, the proposal to fix ceilings on prices, incomes, etc., are all things which have served to bring the American people to the realization that war today is indeed a serious thing. It is helping them to appreciate, too, that however costly and irksome a war is to prosecute, it is many, many times more costly and irksome to lose.

In this connection the Brookings Institute in Washington has made public a report showing that "the German conquest of Belgium has been followed by a systematic exploitation of economic resources far more exhausting than the relatively unmethodical plundering of previous wars." "In addition to seizing large quantities of removable goods," says a press release from the Institute, "the Germans requisitioned all foreign securities and took control of finance, production and trade at the very moment of the invasion according to previously prepared plans. Control has been widely expanded until all economic life is now channeled towards the uses of the conquering power."

Priest Is Hero Of Train Wreck

DETROIT. The Most Rev. Edward Mooney, Archbishop of Detroit, has just made public here the following statement:

"I am gratified to learn that the question between the Post Office and Social Justice magazine, involving a priest of this diocese, has been disposed of as reported in the papers.

"Regardless, however, of how the matter might have been disposed of, I had a definite and explicit commitment from Fr. Coughlin on May 1 that, from that date forward, his severance of all connections, whether direct or indirect, with the magazine would be absolute and complete.

"My understanding with him is sufficiently broad and firm to exclude effectively the recurrence of any such unpleasant situation."

Diocesan Holy Name Men Launch Membership Drive On Union's Anniversary

Every Holy Name man in the diocese was challenged to make his Society a "spiritual power" in the winning of victory and establishment of a just peace at the 10th annual Rochester Diocesan Holy Name Union convention in Rochester on Sunday.

Success of the Diocesan Union in carrying on specified diocesan-wide projects brought the Holy Name men commendation from His Excellency, Bishop Kearney, at the Solemn Pontifical Mass in Holy Redeemer Church and at the luncheon meeting attended by 300 delegates at Powers Hotel. The specified project for this year, given the Diocesan Union by Bishop Kearney is the increasing of membership in the individual societies and the addition of more branches in the diocese.

The Mass of the Feast of the Holy Cross celebrated at Holy Redeemer Church by the Bishop drew a large attendance of Holy Name members.

Officers of Mass Assisting the Bishop were: Assistant Priest, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. William M. Hart, V.G.; Deacons of Honor, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Charles F. Shay and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph S. Cameron; Deacon, the Rev. William F. Stauder, spiritual director of the Union since its inception, Subdeacon, the Rev. Arthur F. Florack, assistant spiritual director; Masters of Ceremony, the Rev. Lawrence E. Casey and the Rev. Edward M. Lyons, Students of St. Andrew's Seminary filled the minor offices.

Vocation of the Holy Name man is to make the name of God known and respected by men, the Bishop said in his sermon as he recalled the foundation of the first Holy Name Society in the world. Achievements of the Diocesan Holy Name Union in ten years of existence and successful carrying out of the Campaign for Decent Literature and the sale of the new Revised New Testament as specified projects were cited.

The Holy Name Society is "one of the outstanding organizations and one of the most powerful instruments for good in the Church," His Excellency said. He cited the "magnetic spiritual leadership" given the Union by its spiritual director, the able leadership of its officers and the sanctity of life of the members which exerts a powerful spiritual influence on the community.

Unique Sessions Held

An innovation at Diocesan Union conventions, the Solemn Pontifical Mass, the luncheon at the Powers Hotel and the panel discussions following rounded out a convention program agreed by the delegates to be "the most successful yet held."

"The Holy Name Society can become and should be a very vital feature in the parish," His Excellency declared at the luncheon meeting in Powers Hotel.

Stating that he was very much impressed with the success of the Holy Name Union in carrying out specified projects, the Bishop called upon them to campaign for all Catholic men in the diocese who are not now Holy Name members.

Purposes Cited

Active Catholic men in the United States are daily and weekly communicants but that is not the object of getting laymen to join the Holy Name Society. The very definite project is to impress upon men that the Holy Name Society monthly Communion is a source of special blessing in the activities of the society for that month. The Bishop explained that the Holy Name Society should carry on its program fostering respect for the Holy Name, carrying on Catholic activity, providing parish cooperation and obtaining an understanding of the Pope's Encyclicals, all making up a program of Catholic Action.
