Chaplains Learn Soldiering

Men of peace must know something about soldiering, if they wish to serve as Chaplains in the United States Army. At the Army Chaplain School, at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, an Army officer instructs the class in the composition and effects of different types of gas. The five-week course includes studies in forms of worship, pastoral duties, close-order drill and conditioning exercises, military law, first aid, topography, graves registration, defense against chemicals and other military subjects. Catholic Chaplain William D. Crary is Commandant of the School. (N.C.W.C.) photo.
