

Cadet Drum Corps Hailed For Turn-outs In Corning

CORNING—One organization in the City of Corning, made up of boys from St. Patrick's Parochial School, that has achieved an enviable reputation for its performance in various civic affairs, is the St. Patrick's Cadets' Drum and Bugle Corps.

Established more than 25 years ago by the Rev. Walter J. Leo, then pastor at St. Patrick's, the Cadets began to come to the notice of the public only about 7 years ago when under the direction of the Rev. Bernard Newcomb, assistant pastor at that time and now of Auburn, they took up music and drilling. Eventually uniforms were provided for them and it was not long before they began to make an excellent showing at various public and parish affairs. Their leader then was Francis C. Hoffman, now deceased.

Today the Cadets, who are now under the direction of Earl Breen, band instructor at Corning Free Academy, are constantly being invited to take part in some civic function. They have provided music several times when the draft contingents have been leaving. They have performed admirably at graduation exercises for air raid wardens and auxiliary firemen and have appeared in numerous parades. Needless to say they are a heart warming and morale building sight as they swing along in their smart uniforms of white trousers with green capes and matching berets. Their pastor, the Rev. E. A. Rawlinson, and their present leader, Clarence Ferrer, have every reason to be proud of them.

The membership of the Cadets is constantly shifting. Father Rawlinson said, due, for one reason, to the fact that boys are taken away by graduation each year and only a few high school boys continue in the organization. Another cause is that sometimes families move out of the parish. However, there are usually from 25 to 40 boys enrolled and active.

Besides their music and drill practice the boys often meet in the Parish Hall for games, boxing and also to learn how to work with their hands. They have made a number of model airplanes. The boys are in charge of the Rev. William T. Tobin, assistant pastor, who succeeds the Rev. Thomas Kane, recently transferred to Rhine.

Parish School Pupils Win 20 Scholarships

WASHINGTON—Twenty scholarships in Catholic educational institutions in and about the Nation's Capital were won in competitive examinations by students graduated this year from the parochial school of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament here. The school is conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Cross.

OFTEN IN DEMAND in this smartly appearing Cadets' Drum and Bugle Corps of St. Patrick's Parish, Corning. The St. Patrick's Cadets furnish music for departures of students and graduations of air wardens and auxiliary firemen are playing in important part in war-time activity in Corning.

CONVENT FOR HIGH SCHOOL NUNS ACQUIRED IN N. Y.

NEW YORK. The Catholic High School Association, Archdiocesan agency which supervises nine high schools located in Manhattan and the Bronx, with an enrollment of 3,800 students, has acquired the Women's University Club as a convent for the 8 Sisters of Charity who teach in the Cathedral High School for girls. These Sisters formerly lived in convents located in various parts of the city which will now be discontinued and disposed of. The building will be known as the Cathedral Convent - Dr. Michael F. O'Donovan Memorial as a tribute to a great benefactor of Catholic education.

There are also three other sons and three other daughters.

Getting On In The World

CATS AND CATS

The varieties are many, but they all belong to the same family. Struck speechless by instinct, fancied or real, implied or implied, all of them catch their breath in a hurry and the content is on—smart, repartee, clever digs, sly innuendoes and curt aspersions. And enough, these things, among the principals, and extremely small and foolish concessions to human pride and vanity. But worse they are when warmed over for some bored or interested listener.

"I said—and she said—and I said—etc., etc., etc." If only the glib tongued ditto folk who indulge in this kind of nonsense could hear themselves, a single blush might be inadequate to cover their confusion. Honestly, cat-talk sounds terrible, no matter how right you are or how right you think you are.

I know, I know. It's great stuff among the big shots in the radio, writing and movie trade—that is, some people think so. And lots of people are great imitators. Lots are unthinking pursuers of will-o-the-wisps. Many would rather be cuttingly clever than kindly silent. Many would rather be stunningly smart than decently truthful. Many would rather be temperamental nitwits than humbly charitable.

And, brother, sister, you 14 to 40-year-old brats who haven't grown up yet and don't intend to, you may not know it, but you're the most boring people on earth. A drunk, a bum, a robber, a killer—there is always some hope for the likes of these, but for catly people, so snug in their own world of smooth vapidity, hope without the jolt and jar of a radical transformation of character is wasteful.

Love Jesus Christ, thine only treasure, thy true and most joyful good.

According To The Doctor

GOOD OLD SOL

Jackie and Johnnie and Sister Susie are minded to do summer time up brown. They certainly do, all right, sometimes. The first breath of hot weather and sunshine finds them soaking up the sun's rays at a rate that would broil a quick steak quick. Their skin gets red and then begins to hurt, then to peel, and then—be careful. Some careless lads and lassies have munched right out into the sunshine again, determined to get their coat of tan just as quickly as the first peeling wears off. And some of them wind up in a hospital with limbs and muscles damaged, badly damaged for life. Fearful sun is alright, but take it easy. You can get enough in easy little doses, five or ten minutes a day, and get it safely. Longer exposure is bound to react painfully and harmfully until the system gets used to it and the skin is stuned to the penetrating heat the summer sun gives off. Swimming is a great sport but when drops of water remain on the skin, they form little magnifying crystals for the sun's rays, increasing the burn and accelerating the depth of it. Wind burn, too, can be a vexatious thing. So take it easy. Got all the outdoor air and summer sun that you can, but get it sensibly. Nature does things slowly but surely. A little at a time then and you will enjoy the better and the longer, these days of health.

MSGR. T. J. McDONNELL'S MOTHER DIES IN NEW YORK
