'CAN'T A GUY DO ANYTHING?'

By THELLA DICK

"Bruce please don't turn the water on the window box. The sun's too hot." Mrs. Bradley's voice held a weary note of irritation. Why must Bruce be so trying on a hot, busy morning like this?

There was, also, a distinctly peevish note in her eight-year-old son's response, "Jimminy, Mom' Can't a guy do anything?"

"Bruce, you've said that twenty times this morning. I do believe. I wish you'd try not to say it so much."

"Have I, Mom?" The small boy stared up through the open dining room window at her. "Twenty times! Whew, that's a lot."

He was thoughtful a moment, then exclaimed, "Well, Mom, I've only said it when you told me not to do things, so that proves what a lot of things I'm not allowed to do around here."

With a shock, Mrs Bradley realized that her son's remark was true. He hadn't repeated his monotonous query any oftener than she had said, "Don't."

If his expression had been tiresome to her disciplined, adult mind, how much more so, must hers have been to him!

Mrs. Bradley felt that she must do some deep thinking. She couldn't do it with the clear-eyed gaze of her son upon her.

"Bruce, will you go on an errand for me?" she asked. There was no irritation in her tone, now.

"Sure, Mom, sure. Where to? May I take Tuck along?" His tone, too, had changed—it was eager and had lost all fretfulness.

"Yes, you may take Tuck. It will be a nice little trip for him. I have a magazine to send to Mrs. Jensen. It's quite a distance to go this warm morning—"

"I don't mind—honest I don't mind—honest I don't. There's lots of shade."

There was a mist in Mrs. Bradley's eyes as she watched him step blithely down the street.

"The first 'Please do', instead of 'Don't, that I have said this morning and look how he responds to it," she murmured contritely.

She stopped her work and sat down in a chair. "Let me see. What are some of the 'dont's' that I have handed out so freely to that child this morning?" she said. "There was, 'Don't make Tuck growl', 'Don't come to the table until you have combed your hair', 'Don't leave the screen door open', 'Don't ask for another cent today,' 'Don't—' O, I had better get a pencil and some paper and go at this in a businesslike way!"

Carefully, Mrs. Bradley listed all the "don'ts" she could remember having inflicted on Bruce that morning. Opposite them, she listed the positive requests which she might have made in place of the negatives which had so irked her small son. She now realized how easy it would have been to say, "Please take Tuck out for a little run, Bruce" instead of "Don't get that dog to barking. I'm trying to phone."

Instead of telling him not to water the petunias, she could have suggested some use of the water which would have been beneficial or at least would have done no harm.

"With a little thought, I could have avoided all those unwise negatives," she decided. "In the future I shall certainly try to avoid them. But if I forget, when Bruce says, 'Can't a guy do anything?' I'll say 'Surely a guy can do something Son,' and then I'll suggest something interesting to do. I have a suspicion," with a wry smile, "that it will help my disposition as much as it does his."

And Mrs. Bradley was right, as she soon proved.

At the Navy Chaplains' School

Yes, even Chaplains must go to school! And maybe you will find your former parish priest in this picture. At the United States Navy Operating Base in Norfolk, Va., newly commissioned chaplains learn the ways of the Navy at the Navy Chaplains' School, the first of its kind in our naval history. A two months' course is given. (N.C.-Wide World photo.)

Anglican Minister Scrubs Prison Floor So Priest Can Say Mass

LONDON, Aug. 17 — An Anglican minister in Tunis, Isaac Dunbar, discovered 30 British Catholic sailors in a French prison in Tunisia, and telephoned to the English White Fathers at Carthage, and when arrangements were made for the visit of a priest he scrubbed the floor of a room in preparation for Mass.

This news is told by the White Fathers at Heston, near here. They say the British soldiers had been in the camp for twelve months without any communication with the outside world. They are part of the crew of 100 of two cargo boats sunk off the Tunisian coast.

The camp is at a lonely spot 100 miles inland and one day the Anglican minister was invited to visit it. When the men expressed a desire to see a priest the Dr. Dunbar got into touch with Father Handcock, who is a professor at the White Fathers' Carthage seminary. Though recovering from illness he made the difficult journey.

An Arab guard nearly shot him as he approached the camp. A Scotsman saved the situation by shouting "A Catholic priest, boys! Take off your hats!"

Father Handcock found that the men had received nothing but their food and that they had not even one book between them. They had no prayer-books or rosaries.

Most of the men made their confession and Father Handcock returned to Carthage where the students made a collection of books, clothing and pious objects.

Then the priest returned to say Mass and found that the Anglican minister had scrubbed out a room for him.

Bishop Asks Prayers For Storm Protection

ST AUGUSTINE, Fla.—Prayers for protection against destructive storms are asked by the Most Rev. Joseph P. Hurley, Bishop of St. Augustine, in instructions issued through the Very Rev. George Rockett, Chancellor.

It is urged that during August, September and October, when the danger of "northeasters" and hurricanes is greatest in this area, the oration, "Ad repellendas tempestates" be said in all Masses in which the rubrics permit. The members of the laity are also asked to offer their own prayers for protection against storms.

The liturgical prayer, "Ad repellendas tempestates," dates back many centuries.

"I couldn't serve as a juror, Judge. One look at that fellow convinces me that he's guilty."

"Sh-h! That's the district attorney!"

Argentina Youth Asks Fair Wage For Workers

BUENOS AIRES — The Christian Labor Youth of Argentina has petitioned Minister of Interior Miguel Culaciatti to take the necessary steps to reduce the cost of the prime necessities of life, and to raise the wages of workers whose minimum living costs exceed their average earnings.

The petition states that the disproportion between living costs and wages is "causing a deficit in the family budget, keeping the worker's family constantly in debt, and forcing it to live under hygienic conditions with grave detriment to physical and moral health."

Such conditions not only affect the quality of the work done by the head of the family, but also bring about a "general discontent among the working class, predisposing it to acceptance of the subversive theories of the communistic soap-box orator."

COLLEGE HEAD VOICES HOPE ALL MALE STUDENTS WILL JOIN ARMY, NAVY RESERVES

MILWAUKEE — The hope that every able-bodied male student at Marquette University will enlist in one or the other of the reserve units being maintained on college campuses by the armed forces was expressed by the Very Rev. Raphael C. McCarthy, S. J., president of the university.

"We are confronted with a national emergency which calls for the greatest effort in American history," Father McCarthy said. "Total war demands total effort. It is the patriotic duty of every individual to render whatever services and make whatever sacrifices are required to win the victory.

"The schools are enlisted for the duration and for the difficult days that will follow. The army and navy officials have wisely concluded to utilize existing facilities in their attempt to build up the officer personnel which will be needed by our expanding forces and demanded as replacements for depleted ranks. They are encouraging eligible young men to enlist in the various reserves. These boys will be allowed to continue their studies because experience has amply proved that a college education is one of the most effective means of training for responsibility and leadership.

"The idea of the Government officials is not to enable boys to evade the call to service. It is to prepare them for more adequate service. It is hoped that every able-bodied student at Marquette will show himself ready and eager to cooperate with the authorities in the carrying out of their program."
