Preservation of Home Stressed At N.C.C.W. Institute in Capital

WASHINGTON—(NC)—"If we lose the home, we shall have lost the war, and if we lose the child, we shall have lost the future of America." Since conservation of the home is the outstanding challenge to American womanhood today, this slogan of the Family and Parent Education Committee of the National Council of Catholic Women is the dominant message which Mrs. Robert A. Angelo, president of the N.C.C.W., wishes carried back to their respective diocesan and diocesan organizations by the women who have been attending the Council's Institute here this week.

Women from Government offices and the headquarters of the American Red Cross, as well as workers from the various departments of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, met with the N.C.C.W. leaders to discuss various phases of American and Inter-American life; but all discussions centered more or less on what is of prime interest to Catholic women—the preservation of the home and a normal society in these most abnormal times, and an incessant striving towards a better world made possible through world peace based on justice and charity.

Fundamental Principle of Unity
Willingly or not, Americans must take part in world affairs, the Rev. Fidelis Rice, C.F., of Scranton, Pa., said at the session conducted by the International Relations Committee. He challenged this group of Catholic women, leaders in their respective communities, to become more actively interested in post-war programs, and to strive for a fundamental principle of unity—not the materialism of Communism which separates rather than unites, but "that unity of spirit which is the mystical Body of Christ."

Definite suggestions on what would contribute to the solidarity of the Western Hemisphere, and thereby to a better post-war world, were made at the "Inter-American Evening," Wednesday. The Rev. Thomas Drury of the Diocese of Amarillo, told of what is being done to draw together the 11,000 American-born Catholics with the 11,000 Mexicans who make up the Diocese's total Catholic population of 22,000 persons. "The Mexicans have set us an example which we might well emulate," he said. "They speak not only their own language, Spanish, but English as well." American Catholics, he added, have that bond of Catholic faith on which to build a strong friendly relationship, but they should also have a knowledge of the Spanish and Portuguese languages.

Jaime Fonsaca Mora, of San Jose, Costa Rica, assistant editor of Noticias Catolicas, Spanish-language news service released by the Press Department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, said that this service, in addition to making world Catholic news available to subscribers in Latin-America is affording additional news coverage of Latin-America to the N.C.C.W. News Service. The Catholic women of the United States, he said, may keep informed of what Catholic women are doing in the other Americas by reading their Diocesan papers.

Women in Industry
The increasing seriousness of the woman in industry problem was emphasized by Miss Linna E. Bresette, field secretary of the Social Action Department, N.C.C.W., when she said that the last census had shown some 10,000,000 women in industry. "From authoritative sources we learn that an additional 3,000,000 are now at work—2,000,000 of them in defense plants—and with more to be absorbed," she said. If these "workers for victory" are to be efficient and aid production, Miss Bresette warned that there must be opposition to any relaxation of the protective labor laws: "They must work under conditions consonant with their general health and welfare if they are to give maximum production." But whether in peacetime or wartime, she added, "stabilization of the home is an essential, and the standing duty of American womanhood."

Best Revenge
The best revenge is love. Disarm anger with smiles; heal wounds with balms; give water to the thirsting foe. The sandal tree, as if to prove its sweet to conquer hate by love, perfumes the air that lays it low.

A Table From Empty Spools

FOR A TABLE 26" HIGH
USE 3 BOARDS WITH HOLES BORED IN THE CORNERS
USE 22 SMALL SPOOLS AND 24 LARGE ONES
USE 4 BRASS CURTAIN RODS RUN THROUGH SPOOLS AND BOARDS
USE GLUE BETWEEN SPOOLS

Work at the Red Cross has created a new interest in home sewing and more and more women are realizing that dressmaking is not only a conservation measure, it is a soothing and satisfying craft in times of stress. If your sewing machine is whirring too, you are probably accumulating spools. Great Grandmother used hers to make what-nots and other things fashionable in her day. Why not use yours for end tables so indispensable in the modern home?

The sketch shows how such a table may be made and the materials needed. If you cannot find any curtain rods not in use take along a spool when you shop for them to be sure you get them the right size. It does not matter if the spools are a little loose on the rod. The glue between the spools will hold them rigid.

NOTE: This spool table is from BOOK 5 of the series of home-making booklets available to readers at 10c each. BOOK 3 gives directions for hanging shelves from spools. Each number contains 22 things to make from odds and ends that accumulate around the house. Include 10c for each copy desired and send request to Mrs. Spens, Drawer 122, Bedford Hills, New York.—(Copyright)

Mass For Polish Women Celebrated In London

LONDON (NC)—Mass for the suffering women of Poland was celebrated at the Oratory here by Bishop Karol Radonski, member of the Polish National Council. It was attended by the President of Poland and members of the Polish Government.

A meeting to protest against the German persecution of Polish women has been held here under the auspices of the Scottish-Polish society. The speakers were all non-Catholic members of parliament.

The desire of the Little Flower was "To plant the Cross of Christ in every pagan land and be a missionary until the end of time."
