Mes Lenwood conducted a wellrecommended vacation play school. When not receiving plane instruc-tion from Alies Lenwood, pupils were kept happly occupied with the singing and dramatization games her assistants directed Jean and her younger sisters, Lois and Patsy, usually spent four mornings a week there. My sister had considered it fortunate that she had been able to secure their enrollment by paying most of their tul-tion in milk and fresh vegetables fram the family garden. That alone made it possible.

"What did Miss Lenwood do to you, darling?" Jean was asked again.

The answer was a louder outburst of walling, followed by the demand: "And don't let Lois or Patsy go back to her old school, either. We'll show her!"

Slight Error

The young man strode into the nowspaper office and banged his cane on the editor's desk. "Where's the editor," he shouled.

"He—He's out," replied the clerk nervously. "What's he done this time?"

"In the advertisement for my valve-less mulor," sformed the vis-itor, "he's turned the second 'v' into a 'u."
