Capuchin Dies

Columbus, O.—The Rev. Kilian Lutz, 75, who entered the Capuchin Order at the monastery in Cumberland, Md., in 1888, is dead. He was considered as a youngster here. The last assignment of Father Lutz, who was born in Germany, was at St. Augustine's, in Pittsburgh.

Month of All Souls

Monday, All Souls' Day, reminds us of an obligation—to pray for the Souls in Purgatory. During November ask our missionaries to offer Mass for the Poor Souls—for your deceased parents and friends.

A STRANGE CATHEDRAL

Twelve years ago, a temporary shed with bamboo rafters and palm-thatched roof was purchased. It became, "The Cathedral" of the zealous missionary convert, Bishop Mar Theophilus. To the present day it is the chief church of the Diocese of Tiruvalla, India.

Time and use have taken their toll. At present "The Cathedral" is in very poor condition. The foundation is weak. The wooden walls and shutters are mostly eaten by termites. The roof is worn thin.

In recent years a beautiful government hospital has been built on one side of the property, and a courthouse on the other. This contrast has brought to the Church undeserved "loss of face" and criticism from her enemies.

This mission has had converts by the thousands during the last ten years. Now the dignity of the Church is at stake. To preserve its gains, a large chapel must be built to take the place of "The Cathedral." In it the worship of God will be carried out with proper dignity and solemnity. Catholics and converts will feel proud of it, if it is in harmony with the neighboring public buildings.

Cardinal Tisserant has asked us to appeal for this worthy purpose. Some Eighteen Thousand Dollars are needed. It is most important to hold the gains of the Church in this area. The turning point of years of missionary labor is at hand.

Will you build this church? If not please send a donation, large or small. By so doing you help not only to build a church but also to make conversions on a scale that holds great promise.

NOVEMBER READING

We have a booklet which explains what the Gregorian Masses are. It tells you how to remember your dead in a very special way. To have the Gregorian Masses offered for a deceased friend or relative is the spirit of November. Write to us for this booklet.

YEAR'S SUPPLY

Eight Dollars will buy a year's supply of Candles used in a mission chapel. Give this donation. The Candles will burn for your intention.

AS AT HOME

Around a mission chapel and school many things are needed, many repairs must be made. It is just like at home. They add up to a lot of money.

Our Stringless Gift Fund takes care of these expenses. Send us One, Two or Five Dollars to add to our Stringless Gift Fund.

AN ACT OF LOVE

Every Catholic likes to have close contact with the Altar and Holy Mass. This because of love for Our Lord in the Blessed Sacrament.

In mission places Mass must sometimes be offered on boards supported by boxes. The Vestments are often shabby and thread worn. Why not donate an Altar. Fifty Dollars will build one. Or, give a Set of Vestments to a poor missionary priest. Twenty Dollars will buy a Set.

These will last for years and give the proper dignity and beauty to the offering of Holy Mass in a poor mission center.

ALTAR LINENS

You can supply sufficient Linen for Altar Cloths for Five Dollars. The Sisters in the Mission will make them.

CHALICE

Ten Dollars will purchase a Chalice for some missionary in the Near East. Here is an opportunity of doing a favor for a missionary priest. He will be prayerfully appreciative. It would be used every day.

CONFESSIONALS

Many of our chapels are without Confessionals. People hesitate to go to confession without the privacy of a Confessional. In thanksgiving for the peace and help of soul you have received from reception of the Sacrament of Penance, donate a Confessional to a mission chapel. Ten Dollars will build one in the Near East.

SOMETHING BIG

If you send Six Hundred Dollars you can sponsor a poor seminarian in study to become a missionary priest; or, you can tell us to build a mission chapel which would last for generations. The great good you thus do, only God would know.

Another example and a particularly good one—is the current "Desperate Journey." This tells what happens when five members of an RAF bomber crew are downed in Germany, and of their attempts to elude the Gestapo and return to England. As work it is more melodramatic and much more implausible than its predecessor, "The Invaders," which it so closely resembles. As you remember that picture had to do with members of a German submarine crew stranded in Canada and trying to escape. "Desperate Journey" reverses the situation in that the pursued, rather than the pursuers, are to be cheered. The escapes and exploits of the group are straight fiction, but Director Raoul Walsh keeps the action popping so rapidly that you don't have time to think about the action being incredible, or care that it is. Ronald Reagan, blithe and likable in his last picture for the duration, and Arthur Kennedy, an able young actor who hasn't always received the best movie breaks, register particularly in the cast which also has the services of Errol Flynn, the high school hero; Raymond Massey, Nancy Coleman, Alan Hale, Albert Basserman, Ronald Sinclair and others.

"You Can't Escape Forever"—A-2

Newspaper life a la Hollywood is something to which you're growing accustomed, but "You Can't Escape Forever" is the most flagrant foolishness that ever masqueraded as a story about the gentlemen of the press. It is a remake of "Hi, Nellie," an early Paul Muni picture—and one which he is probably eager to forget. This time it's George Brent who essays the role of the managing editor who is demoted to the position of lovelorn adviser. Brent is good enough as a romantic leading man, but when a role such as this calls for the light touch, he becomes coy and kittenish. Brenda Marshall is pretty, but no comedienne either.

My Guardian Angel

If I was out on a storm-tossed sea
And having a very hard time
My Guardian Angel would stand by me
Just like a Mother of mine.

If I was losing the fight
I would give him a little nod
He would come to me day or night
And help me finish the job.

Why don't you try it sometime
See if it is not true
Motion him any good way
I know he will come to you

Don't be afraid of him
There is nothing that he will miss
I know he will always bring
You Joy and Happiness.
