Trained Women Needed in War Effort

President Roosevelt's hint that women may be compelled to register for war production needs drew observation from Assistant Superintendent of Schools Verne A. Bird who heads the Vocational Training for War Production program.

These who are employable and eligible for war plant work should begin to flock to any war training centers before any compulsory registration is established, Bird said.

It is estimated that 20,000 women will be needed within the year in the Rochester area. This training is provided free of charge. All women eligible for employment are invited to an "Open House" program, scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 18...
