

Famed Trapp Family Sings Mass Responses At Carmel

The Carmelite Monastery, 1530 East Avenue, was accorded a rare privilege on Wednesday with the visit of the famous Trapp family. This family choral group assisted at Mass and sang a number of selections.

The Rev. Frank Wagner, their personal Chaplain and musical director, said that it has been their policy to visit the Carmel Monastery as they tour about the country.

Mass was celebrated by Father Wagner. The family answered the responses and sang a number of hymns in Latin and in their mother tongue. It was indeed an inspiring setting to see the devoted Catholic family in their native dress and to hear them recite together the responses at Mass ordinarily recited by the altar boys.

The Trapp Family sang a concert at Kithour Hall on Tuesday morning and appeared at the Priests' Holy Hour in the afternoon. They left directly after Mass for concert engagements in Boston, Mass.

Search 'Back Paws' For Rosaries To Send To Soldiers Is Urged

NEW YORK — Because the war has cut off the principal sources of new Rosaries in Europe, the Chaplains' Aid Association here asks pastors and parishioners to search the "back paws" of the churches and go through their homes for old beads that can be reconditioned to meet the demand of the armed services.

The Association expresses gratitude to those who already have gathered thousands of Rosaries which have been forwarded to chaplains and Catholic service men throughout the world. The Association says it was receiving more demands for Rosaries than any other religious article, and declares that "letters from the chaplains and men convince us that the donors will be rewarded with the knowledge that our men in service are saying the Rosary."

Quilt Blocks With Modern Uses This old-fashioned saw tooth quilt pattern has been used for the border of many handsome quilts. It is so modern looking and so simple to piece that it should serve many decorative purposes. Here it trims kitchen curtains of unbleached muslin. In addition to its old time use its angular note would make it effective as a border for luncheon cloths, aprons and various other purposes.

To make a pattern cut a square of cardboard, then cut diagonally; one-half will make a triangle pattern. The size suggested in sketch may vary according to the purpose in mind. If a bright color is used for the plain triangles, a narrow border will make a good showing.

NOTE: Readers who plan to piece quilts this Winter and have not selected their pattern should send for the three patterns designated by Mrs. Spears which will be sent for 10c to cover cost and mailing. Address: Mrs. Spears, Drawer 127, Duluth, Minn.
