War Dims Out Great Cross-Beacon Atop Montreal Mountain

MONTREAL.—The great cross atop Mount Royal, whose 200 lights could be seen far miles each night, is being dimmed in an effort to save electricity.

Only 20 of the lamps will remain lighted but these will still form the cross. It was not dimmed by celebrations that the cross is to be dimly marked but, except in cases of emergency, as the year passes, being an expression of Montreal's faith, also serves as a guiding beacon for the many planes now training in the Montreal area, warning of the mountain on which it stands.

A man received notice to vacate from his landlord. He decided not to go and replied: "Dear sir, I remain. Yours truly."
