

Overcoming Odds Features 85-Year Record of Nuns

Imminent demands for care of sick and wounded at the time of the Civil War and met by the Sisters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul laid the foundation for St. Mary's Hospital in Rochester. Imminent demands for care of sick in the present World War and unquestionably for care of the wounded soon has brought about the erection of a modern hospital building to meet those needs.

The Sisters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul have an 85-year record in the treatment of the ill and hurt which covers four wars, depressions, and tragedies, all of which have been met with fortitude inspired by their great patron, Saint Vincent de Paul.

In 1857 three Sisters of the community came from the Mother House at Emmitsburg, Maryland, on invitation of Bishop Timon, Bishop of Buffalo, of which this area was then a part.

Undaunted by what seemed to be insurmountable obstacles the sisters purchased land at Bull's Head, Main St. West and Genesee St. and converted two stone stables into Rochester's first hospital.

Conditions were such then that the sick had to be treated in their homes or physicians' offices. Mother Hieronymo Cited

Beginning the work then that was to make her name renowned in the care of the sick throughout the country was Mother Hieronymo. Delected by the Reverend Mother, the sisters fitted up the buildings as best they could. They cared for the poor, the sick and the infirm, most of them penniless.

Principles upon which St. Mary's Hospital has been conducted since its beginning were set forth in this statement of Mother Hieronymo issued in September, 1857.

"The institution shall ever be open to the sick of all denominations of none; no distinction will be made. Patients who desire spiritual help from pastors of their belief shall have every facility afforded them to obtain this consolation. The sisters are ever willing to admit the sick poor gratis as far as their means will permit."

During the first hard year the Sisters took care of 250 patients. They used a large drygoods box for a table by day and at night drew from it their mattresses to sleep on the floor.

The same tireless energy shown by their successors today was manifested by the Sisters then. They went about asking alms for their work. They erected a two-story building connecting the two stables. In 1859 they found their facilities again inadequate.

In that year they built the three-story structure which is the east wing of the old hospital on West Main St. More than half their patients were charity cases, others paid small amounts, the Sisters' debts mounted.

Then came the Civil War. The Sisters' problems mounted as the demand for caring for the wounded soldiers increased. They were forced to move civilian patients across the street in Genesee Street to a hall while they cared for the soldiers in the hospital.

During the war the Sisters cared for 5,000 soldiers. Payment by the government of a fixed sum for the care of each soldier, increased public interest in the work of the hospital and volunteering by women of the city for duty in the emergency eased the situation.

Mother Hieronymo was head of St. Mary's until 1870 when transferred but her influence has left an indelible imprint. From 1857 to 1882 the hospital took care of 21,461 patients in addition to the Civil War casualties.

Nuns Save Patients

Fire swept through the hospital building on Feb. 15, 1881. All that remained were the stone walls. The 18 nuns in charge disregarded personal danger to assist the 300 patients to safety. Not a life was lost.

The Sisters had just been given $20,000 by city residents for needed improvements. However, the clergy, sisters and laity of the diocese began immediately to set about repairing the damage caused by fire.

From then on the extensive program of progress resulting from increased demands on the Sisters was carried out. A Nurses' Training Center was organized in 1891 and the first class was graduated in 1894.

An operating pavilion was built in 1898. The contagious pavilion was erected in 1899. Inauguration of a maternity department took place in 1902. A sum of $80,000 was required to build the beautiful hospital chapel where Holy Mass is celebrated and other services conducted, in 1908.

The first motor-driven ambulance was purchased in 1914, and the following year saw a new power house and laundry constructed at a cost of $40,000.

The new St. Mary's School of Nursing home was dedicated in 1923 after a building fund of $24,000 was subscribed by citizens. With church dignitaries and

New Hospital Building's Need Evidenced In Cooperation Met

A monument to the care, service and faith of the Sisters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul is being met in this Diamond Street building as the new St. Mary's Hospital is being erected today after almost insuperable obstacles had been overcome by all concerned in its completion.

The $1,200,000 hospital building at 40 Genesee St. was given last minute attention yesterday for dedication by His Excellency, Bishop Kearney, today.

The six-story, 300-bed hospital structure has been brought to completion by the combined efforts of architect, general contractor and expert craftsmen with the help of officials in Washington who met the need for the hospital in these war times.

Joseph P. Flynn, the architect, and Daniel J. Meagher, general contractor, who himself went to Washington to confer on the matter of priority after the Civil War was established, worked incessantly with Sister M. Martin, hospital superintendent to complete the gigantic job.

Noted Catholic Laymen Share Building Honors

Two outstanding Catholic laymen had a major share in the construction of St. Mary's Hospital.

They are Joseph P. Flynn, architect, and Daniel J. Meagher, general contractor. They cooperated with Sister Martina, erection superintendent and Dr. Leo F. Simpson, Chief of Staff in the Buildings.

Mr. Meagher, originally from the old Cathedral parish, has been one of Rochester's foremost building contractors and his part in personally seeing to it that materials came through for the new hospital is winning for him countless congratulations, this week.

A graduate of St. Mary's Orphan Home, old Cathedral High School and of Notre Dame University, Mrs. Flynn, known to his innumerable friends as "Stubby," has in the past 26 years designed buildings which cost more than $12,000,000 to construct. These include churches, convents, as well as city buildings.

In the World War Mr. Flynn attended the Aerial School of Photography and was sent to France, where he became a Sergeant, First Class.

He completed three successful terms as Grand Knight of Rochester Council, Knights of Columbus, this year and was given a testimonial by the Council for his many years of service. He is the founder of the Notre Dame Club of Rochester and belongs to Order of the Alhambra, the Fourth Degree Assembly and several other organizations.
