Labor Ethics Discussed At Opening Session

Opening session of the current semester of the Rochester Catholic Labor College was held Friday evening at St. Joseph's House of Hospitality. Rev. George Vogt, M.A., diocesan director of the Confederation of Christian Doctrine led a discussion on Labor Ethics.

The text that will be used as a guide for this term's discussion is Islands of Reconstruction, one of a series of pamphlets on The Social Question, by Dom Vergil Michel.

The discussion brought out that our late Holy Father describes the present condition of society in the following brief statement: "Nowadays, as more than ever in the history of the Church, we are confronted with a world which in large measure has almost fallen back into paganism."

Father Michel states that: Paganism, in general, is characterized by the viewpoints or attitudes known as materialism and naturalism. With such ideas dominant in a great part of modern civilization, there is no wonder that Pius XI stressed as a first need the return to a Christian way of life: "If we examine the matter diligently and thoroughly we shall perceive clearly that this longed-for social reconstruction must be preceded by a profound renewal of the Christian spirit."

"A return to the Christian view of life necessarily means a break with the pagan views of materialism and naturalism and exaggerated individualism." This break must be characterized by a return to the concept of the nature and dignity of the human person and of the organic nature of society. For as Pius XI says: "Then only will it be possible to unite all in a harmonious striving for the common good, when all sections of society have the intimate conviction that they are members of a single family and children of the same heavenly Father, and further, that they are one body in Christ and everyone members one of another."

Movements Cited
Father Vogt said that these principles will find practical expression in such movements as The Cooperative Movement such as the one started by Fathers Tomkins and Condy of St. Francis Xavier University for the exploited and impoverished West Indian and workers of Antigonish, Nova Scotia.

Another phase of The Cooperative Movement which has been developed in many Catholic parishes is the establishment of credit unions. A further step in voluntary economic cooperation is seen in the establishment of rural cooperative communities such as Monsignor Ligutti's Granger Homesteads and The Catholic Worker Farming Communities.

An evidence of the high favor in which such projects are held by Our Holy Father is seen in the following message from Pope Pius XII to the group at Antigonish: "Something happening in your country has brought the Pope great joy, and in an earnest of better things to come, I speak of your efforts in the social sphere... moved by brotherly love to help men of slender means better their lot in such a way that the full teaching of the encyclical Quadragesimo Anno may be put into practice... social life has a sacredness all its own when imbued with the spirit of the Gospel and based on justice and charity... may the work grow and flourish."

Father Vogt recommended the following books for collateral reading: The Twilight of Capitalism and the War by Dr. Walter John Marx of the Catholic University; Easy Essays by Peter Maurin; The End of Our Times by Nicholas Berdyaev; and The Modern Dilemma by Christopher Dawson.

Father Vogt announced that Aaron Apell, Ph.D., head of the History Department at Nazareth College, will discuss current social legislation at the next session to be held Friday evening, Jan. 29, at 8:30 o'clock at St. Joseph's House of Hospitality.
