

OUR LADY, MOTHER OF ALL MISSIONARIES is a title that must be loved by the Queen of Heaven, since the sacred trust of their labors was solemnly reposed in her of the feet of the Cross. Never during the succeeding 20 centuries has she relaxed her vigilance and care. Since motherhood needs an emphasis in any country, Mary's role as mediator between sinful man and status divinity is understandable in every tongue. Regardless of class or color, irrespective of distance or difficulties, Our Lady, Mother of all Missionaries, often has bestowed her love and affection of all mankind.

'Do Men In Danger Pray?' Affirmative Answer Given

By GEORGE HARRISON
LONDON, (CNS)—The men in danger pray? asked the Vatican, the spokesman of the Holy See, in St. Wulstan, Preston. This is the answer of one of the English men, the other says, that they do pray, great danger, still in danger.

...a 'line' even in private life.
"Personally I try to think of God as my best pal. I try to imagine Him as a young man in uniform, the spirit always near me ready to give me help when I need it. He is always with me in my work, and I speak to Him in my thoughts in every hour as all sorts of affairs, and I find I get along fine."

"I have had quite a number of these dangerous moments, and I've made it a practice to pray, when I was looking at it to make the sign of the Cross whenever I should have been in, and always to say a prayer of thanksgiving when we 'reached shore' at last.

ORPHANAGE

Ten miles from Sherbrooke and half a mile from Waterville, Compton County, Province of Quebec, the Orphanage of St. Joseph is located. This is a new enterprise (June, 1942) and an interesting one.

When orphan boys are twelve years of age, they leave the Hospice du Sacre-Coeur at Sherbrooke and come to the Agricultural Orphanage. Brother Dominic, C.S.C., the Superior, summarizes the aims and purposes as follows:

- "To make good citizens who will be faithful to their Country and Faith;
- "To find benefactors for those who want to become priests, religious, etc.;
- "To find good families (farmers, if possible) who will accept and take care of those who are too old to remain at the Orphanage;
- "To group together the oldest to celebrate a piece of land;
- "To follow them after their departure to encourage them and to make sure that those who are accepted are well treated, etc."

Training is needed and the boys get it. "Elementary courses as far as high school. An agricultural course of two years for those who are fifteen or more. In connection with the farm work, carpentry, shoemaker's work, blacksmithing, etc., are taught."

There are now twenty boys with four Brothers and a Priest on the premises. They have three houses: the smallest is for the farm hand and his family; in another, the orphans live; in the third are housed the chapel and refectory and some of the Brothers. There are good barns and stables. They have 92 milk cows, 100 heifers and steers, 8 horses and colts. They harvested 200 tons of hay and threshed 3100 bushels of oats.

Is there any Catholic orphanage in the United States that prepares boys for a home on the land? When you visit St. Joseph's, ask for Brother George. They let him do it!

How soon before death should the Sacrament of Extreme Unction be administered to a sick person? The Church urges that any one in danger of death may and should receive the Sacrament of Extreme Unction. It is a great mistake to wait until people are in imminent danger of death before summoning a priest. The Sacrament of Extreme Unction is primarily intended to bestow some special grace upon the soul at a critical time of life, but it is also an occasion in which God sometimes confers a special blessing in the way of bodily health.

Incense was used at first at the Gospel of the Mass only, but in succeeding centuries other incense-sessions were introduced, not only at the Mass but at other services of the Church. So at the present day the use of incense forms a rather prominent feature of the more solemn services of our Church.

What are the nullifying impediments to marriage? They are: age, impotence, existing marriage, Holy Orders, solemn vow, difference of worship, crime, consanguinity, public decency, affinity, abduction, spiritual relationship, and legal adoption in places where the civil law nullifies such a marriage.

Are all secret societies forbidden by the Church?—W. M.

The Catholic Church does not condemn any society merely because it is secret in its transactions of business. Every society may have its lawful secrets. A family is a society, and no family is obliged to call in strangers and exhibit all its affairs to the public gaze. But the Church does condemn those societies whose form of secrecy can be dangerous to religion, to the state, or to morality. Many Catholic societies which have their own legitimate secret business are permitted by the Church. But, before giving her sanction, the Church makes sure that secret business is limited to lawful matters, and that the constitutions of such societies are based upon Christian principles.

I saw the statement that man is immortal soul by external grace. What is meant by that? I have always thought that grace is internal.

External grace may be any providential fact or event which by its moral influence helps a rational creature on their way to heaven. Such a grace might be Holy Scripture, the life of Christ and of the saints and in general any fact or event which may help man towards eternal salvation.

What are the four gospels of the Evangelist or Gospel-writers and what do they mean?

- (1) St. Matthew, a man or human force because St. Matthew begins his gospel with the human birth of Christ.
- (2) St. Mark, a lion because this gospel begins with St. John, the Baptist, "the voice of one crying in the wilderness."
- (3) St. Luke, an ox or calf, because this holy writer begins with Zachary, the priest of the Old Law who offered sacrifices of animals and other gifts.
- (4) St. John, an eagle, because St. John opens his gospel with the eternal birth of the Son, and thus soars on the wings of inspiration, like an eagle, into the far reaches of eternity.

Is it wrong for a Catholic to encourage non-Catholics to attend Protestant services?

Catholics should try to make their non-Catholic friends and acquaintances see the necessity of offering homage and adoration to God. They can do much in explaining to their non-Catholic friends the true nature of man, that above and beyond all else he is a creature of God and as a creature he has the obligation of acknowledging his complete and total dependence on God through acts of petition, thanksgiving, adoration, and asking for forgiveness for his offenses against his Creator and his other creatures.

In this way a Catholic will be showing his non-Catholic friends that religion is necessary, since these are the prime elements of religion. The choice of a specific religion should be left up to the conscience of the individual. Otherwise we might be guilty of leading someone into error.

I read that incense was used in Jewish and pagan worship and then used in Catholic worship. What I would like to know is when was it introduced into Catholic worship?

In answer to your question we must confess that we do not know exactly. There is no evidence that it was employed in Christian worship until about the fifth century, although when we consider to what an extent it was used in the rites of Judaism and how many times it is mentioned in the Scriptures, it seems probable that incense, as a part of the Catholic ceremonial, goes back to a much earlier day. It came into use in the East before the Western or Latin Church adopted it, for the Orientals in the earlier centuries had a much more elaborate ritual than did the Roman Church.
