

ON THE HOME FRONT—A typical scene in the Catholic home should find the entire family eagerly reading the Catholic paper, the bulwark of the family in these trying days. Posing for this photo were: Mr. and Mrs. John M. Blackwood, and daughter, Lucy, and looking over their shoulder at the copy of the CATHOLIC COURIER, are ages, John and Peter.

CATHOLIC COURIER Staff Photo

War-Time Rationing Seen Turning People To Home; Good Reading

(By N.C.W.C. News Service)
War's hardships, particularly the rationing of gasoline and tires, may turn into a blessing in disguise and lead some to profitable acquaintance with the Catholic Press. It has been pointed out in Catholic Press Month letters of several of the Members of the Hierarchy.
The Most Rev. Christopher E. Byrne, Bishop of Galveston, selected automobiles and motion pictures "have given a long vacation to our homes."
"Now," the Bishop continued, "with the automobile in the garage, and with our ships and our pipes, keeping us comfortable and happy at home, we will begin to think on subjects that we had left right of. And, our thinking will provoke us to know what others are thinking about. And so, we shall go back to reading. Because if we are not reading very much except what was of a light and foamy character, that was evidence that we were not thinking ourselves."
Wrong Things Being Read
Bishop Byrne added all to "think of God, read about His church, and about the lives of those who are keeping His Commandments. How avidly we may not read the details of a world war, the hard details of an outfit, and yet, the readers of such would turn away from the life of a soldier, or an outstanding Christian man or woman of our time."
In a letter to all pastors of his diocese calling attention to Press Month, the Most Rev. Emmanuel H. Ledwith, Bishop of Corpus Christi, stated:
"Now that we have gas and tire rationing regulations laid down by our Government to help win the war, families will be remaining at home and will have more time for good reading; there is an added reason to be sure to have the family supplied with a good Catholic newspaper."
The Most Rev. Joseph F. Lynch, Bishop of Dallas, in a pastoral letter, reminded that "the growing disregard of basic standards of religious, social and economic life, constrained the Bishops of America to designate February as Catholic Press Month" and urged that during the present critical period, "the need of all Catholic households should be emphasized, but especially the need in every home of the diocesan weekly paper."
Bishop Lynch pointed out the Catholic Press mission is not primarily "to pay monetary dividends,"

Bishop Spurs New Type of Press Drive

(Continued from Page 1)
In the future every paper will be mailed directly to the home of the subscriber. This goes away with the Carrier by subscription. The difficulty of obtaining boys who had the time and willingness to do this job is responsible for the change. Beginning with the issue of March 25 and until further notice the only delivery of the CATHOLIC COURIER will be through the mails.
With Bishop Kearney's slogan, "A Catholic Center in Every Home of the Diocese," the management of the paper has dedicated itself to a program of editorial improvement. Major steps in this direction have already been taken. Special editions for the various sections of the diocese have been widely published. This move has made it possible to give more news space and prominent attention to the events outside of Rochester.
Editorial Board
Within the near future the selection of an Editorial Board will be announced. This will give the printed word the benefit of the advice of trained newspaper men, and men who by experience in other fields are keenly sensitive to popular reactions. It is a foregone conclusion that the advice of this Board will increase the reader acceptance of the COURIER and make it one of the foremost Catholic weeklies in the country.

With Bishop Kearney leading the way, every priest and religious in the diocese is prepared to go "all out" in this circulation campaign. It only needs the generous and enthusiastic cooperation of the laity to assure its success.
The challenge of Bishop Gannon, episcopal chairman of the NCWC News Service, that Catholic papers must be vocal and vigorous in dictating the terms of the Peace that will be written after Victory, is to every Catholic layman to keep himself informed of world developments through Catholic reading. If we remain silent in this crisis we are apt to have another Versailles Treaty which means World War III within a few years. For the people of the diocese of Rochester the CATHOLIC COURIER is the source which will bring them the news of the day, international, national and local.
When your pastor solicits your subscription on Sunday request joyfully in his request for it is the ideal of the Bishop that there be a "Courier in Every Catholic Home."

Lauds Soldiers 'Fr. Jim'

BOSTON—In military uniform, he is Major James E. Dunford, of the Chaplain Corps United States Army. Resolutely speaking, he is the Rev. James E. Dunford, former pastor of St. Bridget's Church, Framingham, Mass. But to countless soldiers now stationed in the Continental battle area, he is just "Father Jim."
A letter describing Father Dunford's work at the front has been received here from the Rev. Fredric P. Gehring, who holds a temporary commission as a chaplain in the Navy. Heartyhearted Father Dunford goes. Father Gehring said, he is hailed enthusiastically by soldiers as "Father Jim" and "There's no greater tribute that can be paid to a man of God, a Chaplain," than the way soldiers receive Father Dunford among them.
"When ragged, war-weary soldiers, hounded with the snarl of a jungle beast, copped front steps at the front, tired of body and mind, brighten at the sight of their chaplain, that priest has gained the confidence and respect of his men," Father Gehring wrote. "And may God help the man who will say anything against him."
On an occasion also, trusting to the multitude of Thy needs, I know some part and share with Thy holy Apostles and martyrs, Chosen of the Mass.

gone conclusion that the advice of this Board will increase the reader acceptance of the COURIER and make it one of the foremost Catholic weeklies in the country.
With Bishop Kearney leading the way, every priest and religious in the diocese is prepared to go "all out" in this circulation campaign. It only needs the generous and enthusiastic cooperation of the laity to assure its success.
The challenge of Bishop Gannon, episcopal chairman of the NCWC News Service, that Catholic papers must be vocal and vigorous in dictating the terms of the Peace that will be written after Victory, is to every Catholic layman to keep himself informed of world developments through Catholic reading. If we remain silent in this crisis we are apt to have another Versailles Treaty which means World War III within a few years. For the people of the diocese of Rochester the CATHOLIC COURIER is the source which will bring them the news of the day, international, national and local.
When your pastor solicits your subscription on Sunday request joyfully in his request for it is the ideal of the Bishop that there be a "Courier in Every Catholic Home."

Chas. Fennan Co.
Clinton Ave. 5 • Main 5900

California "Ribbon Rounder"
New Hats—in Colors Born of Sunshine
7.75

They're made from row upon row of crisp grosgrain! Two hand-turning styles—a big petal-trimmed brim (shown) that makes a frame for your face; a puffly brim to sit smartly behind your pompadour. Let a Fennan "Ribbon Rounder" bring sunshine to your life!
Get This Fennan's Street Team

WM. F. and S. GEO. SHAFER MENS & SHAFER
Formerly President and Vice-President

An Annual Event . . . Preferred by Catholic Courier Readers

SHAFFER'S
Feb. SALE
Fur Coats
Of Fashion and Quality
$69 to $690

Several generations of Catholic Courier readers have shown their preference for the name SHAFER'S. Their quality and fashion has been outstanding in Rochester for well over a Half Century.

Join the vast crowd of wise women who are looking ahead and buying Fur Coats for next Winter, profiting from February Sale Savings, and getting a new Fur Coat while the getting's good.

Charge and Budget Accounts

SHAFFER CO. 51 EAST AVE.