might come upon him in his study, sitting in the dark, with his penary in his hand, and a tear streaming down his cheek for those for whom he was thinking and praying.

Recalling that gentle, familiar phrase Father Stammer always used after a plea for spiritual assistance: "Never mind, we'll do the best we can"—Father Lane said that that was his answer also in his last few days of weakness. "I'm doing the best I can." It summed up his whole life. His monument is in the church which he transformed into beauty at his own expense when he thought that his days were short. The final expression of his love for his parishioners.

"We, his fellow priests," said Father Lane, "pledge our word that we will not forget him. We will continue to pray for the happy repose of his soul."

The body of Father Stammer was laid in state in the church since Sunday afternoon, with a guard of honor of Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus, St. John Society, and the Holy Name Society. On Sunday evening priests of the diocese chanted the Office of the Dead. For a last time on Monday morning, friends and laymen visited the body, and they filled the porch and standing room to capacity for the service.

Officers of Mass
Assisting Bishop Kearney in the Mass were: Assistant Priest, the Rt. Rev. Magr. William M. Hart, Vicar General; Deacons of Honor, the Rt. Rev. Magr. John J. In which hundreds are Catholic, but for which no Catholic chaplain is available. Such troops have Sunday Mass largely through the fine cooperation of the English clergy. He pointed out that the Very Rev. Magr. Valentine Elwes, Secretary to His Excellency Arthur Cardinal Hinsley, Archbishop of Westminster, says Mass at one such station every Sunday.

In emphasizing the utter desirability of the work which service who was consecrated Bishop of Rockford, Ill., on Feb. 17, is a member of the 1916 Class of St. Bernard's Seminary, Rochester.

MOST REV. JOHN J. BOYLAN

Solemnly Consecrated Bishop of Rockford

DES MOINES, Ia.—As Bishop he will always be "the sturdy adversary of anything un-American as he is the implacable enemy of anything un-Christian," stated the Most Rev. Francis J. L. Beckman, Archbishop of Dubuque at the solemn consecration of the Most Rev. John J. Boylan.

Bishop Boylan, the third Bishop of Rockford, Ill., was formerly President of Dowling College and Vicar General of Des Moines. The ceremony was held in St. Ambrose Cathedral here on Feb. 17. The Most Rev. Gerald T. Bergan, Bishop of Des Moines, was consecrator, assisted by the Most Rev. Henry P. Rohman, Bishop of Davenport, and the Most Rev. Edmund Heenan, Bishop of Sioux City.

Save Formula for Peace
Pleading the cause of peace and the rehabilitation of the world that follows victory, Archbishop Beckman said: "The Catholic Bishop, together with all those who accept Christ, has his own formula for a post-war world—a world in which neither capital nor labor, neither rugged individualism nor collectivism, shall be predominant, a world in which the middle way, the way of Christ, the just way will be the pattern of men's lives. Christ Himself, the Prince of Peace, dictated that formula, that blue print for a peace with justice and it is a plan in which all men of good will may unite. It is a plan of action now."

Represent Diocese
Among the more than two score Archbishops, Bishops and Abbots who attended the ceremony was His Excellency, the Most Rev. James E. Kearney, Bishop of Rochester.

Bishop Boylan studied at St. Bernard's Seminary. His consecration was attended by many priests and monsignors who were members of his class at the Seminary. Monsignor Joseph E. Grady, and the Rev. John Smith of Corning, excommunicates, were present.

Bishop Boylan, ordained in 1916, is the fifth member of his class to be raised in the episcopacy. The others are Bishop Walter A. Foery of Syracuse, Bishop Matthew Brady of Burlington, Vt., Bishop Emmett M. Walsh of Charleston, S. C., and Bishop Francis P. Keough of Providence, R. I.

agencies can do for American troops abroad, Mr. Matthews said he appreciated that many obstacles would have to be overcome. He understood, he said, that there is the difficulty of getting personnel and materials abroad, of getting priorities, and of meeting numerous other problems. But, he repeated, the Canadian Knights of Columbus are doing a magnificent job in Great Britain, are meeting and overcoming all of these difficulties, and enjoy the fullest confidence and cooperation from their Government.

Mr. Matthews had warm praise for the work Catholic agencies including the Catholic Women's League and the Knights of St. Columba, in England are doing.

Stressing the fact that facilities for the practice of their religion is one of the great needs of the troops in England, Mr. Matthews said members of the English clergy remarked to him what he himself had observed, the great scarcity of chaplains.
