Two ill dressed women have just escaped across the Norwegian frontier.

"Why do you take such terrible chances to come to Sweden?" a Stockholm correspondent asked the women who had walked 100 miles to the border which was strolled by Nazi troops.

"We have left our homes and our possessions knowing we are leaving our old life for a crowded refugee camp," the older woman answered. "Life is not worth living in Norway today. Our homeland has been turned into an inferno."

Your home has been scarcely scathed by the present war here in America. Do your part to keep actual danger from our shores.
