Mass Said Regularly At U. S. Camp For German Prisoners

ROSWELL, N. Mex. — Mass is being celebrated regularly by the Rev. Genesee Stronk, O.F.M., for German prisoners of war at the prison camp here.

The prisoners sing hymns and pray the Mass with Father Stronk, who, much to the prisoners' delight, preaches to them in German. Before his appointment as chaplain at the internment camp, Father Stronk was stationed in Detroit.

The number of prisoners cannot be disclosed, but they include both soldiers and sailors. Some are members of captured submarine crews while others were taken prisoners in North Africa. All religious denominations are given the right of freedom of worship at the camp.

Inflation must be fought. The most pleasant way of fighting it is through investments in War Bonds and War Stamps. By co-operating in this plan, we can avoid less pleasant ways.

Archbishop Spellman Plans To Sing Easter Mass In Jerusalem

Radios Report On Men In War Areas, Cites Antidote For Hate

NEW YORK (NY) — Before he reaches India, China and the Middle East, the Most Rev. Francis J. Spellman, Archbishop of New York and Military Vicar of the Armed Forces of the United States, plans to visit the American soldiers in the Holy Land during Holy Week and to offer up the Sacrifice of the Mass on Easter Sunday in Jerusalem.

The Archbishop made this plan known in a short note to the address from London Sunday, addressed particularly to the 1,000 volunteer workers in the twenty-fourth annual appeal of the New York Catholic Charities. The appeal entered its final stages Sunday when the volunteer workers began a house-to-house canvass of the 375 parishes of the Archdiocese.

Reporting on his visit to several camps in Africa and Great Britain, the Archbishop said: "The men over here are calm, determined, and certain about the winning of this war. And they like to hear and talk about the home fronts."

Fighters' Aim
"No sacrifice seems too great to them if they can be assured that the life they live, the country they love, can be resumed again after the war is over. Their aim is America's ultimate victory and after victory a just and lasting peace."

"The contribution of the lives of these men, our men, will be a fruitful sacrifice unless we win both the war and the peace."
"We shall win the war by our power, brain power, arms power and our powerful source of supply. We shall win the peace with the same power, plus the power of the soul and the source and resource of all powers of the soul is charity."

The Archbishop recalled his last day in New York in February and of the comforting thought which came to the parents of the five Bellarmine Brothers when they said that the boys had been spiritually prepared for the Catholic Charities campaign and of the letter sent to all in the Archdiocese.

"While I spoke my full heart in that letter, I welcomed this additional opportunity to speak to you. For where ever I roam, whatever needs to see, my heart welcomed fondly turns to you."

"But also where ever I roam, I see America and Americans struggling, struggling, suffering and str-

Vatican Eases U. S. Wife's Anxiety By Sending Word of Soldier-Husband's Safety

WASHINGTON. — A service by the Catholic Church was beyond a "valve beyond human reasoning" by the neighboring Frederic's secular newspaper when a bereaved non-Catholic wife, who had been notified by the War Department that her husband was "missing in action," learned through the Vatican that he was a prisoner of war in Italy.

The wife is Mrs. Margaret Thompson, of Frederic, Pa., days after she learned from the War Department that her husband, Corp. McCagert Thompson, was "missing in action." The Rev. Patrick E. Leahy, of St. Patrick's Church, Frederic, called at the Thompson home. He notified the bereaved wife that she had come to the Most Rev. Christian H. Wilhelmsson, Bishop of Wichita, from the Vatican through the Apostolic Delegation in Washington, that her husband was a prisoner of war. The Vatican message, which instructed Mrs. Thompson to be notified, stated Corp. Thompson had been wounded but was safe.

Commenting on the tragedy-incident, Father Leahy said the action on the part of the Vatican "for this non-Catholic boy did more towards creating a better understanding toward the church here in Frederic than the most eloquent apologetic sermon."
