Moral Order Must Be Based On Divine Justice To Insure Lasting Peace—Mgr. Sheen

NEW YORK (NC)—Lasting peace will be insured as long as the moral order is based on Divine Justice in the hearts of men and of nations, the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Fulton J. Sheen, of Catholic University of America, declared here Sunday night in his radio address on the "Catholic Hour."

Monsignor Sheen asserted that "when one gets down to rock bottom there are only two reasons for keeping treaties, one because of force and the other because of moral obligation. He said the theory 'of force seems right when we can apply the force, but in itself force never makes right. Regarding moral obligation, Monsignor Sheen said:

"Are we blind? Can we not see that if law is divorced from morality and religion, the treaties come to be obligatory and begin to be mere arrangements, binding only as long as they are advantageous? The international justice of the world in Divine Justice and treaties are hypothetical, not categorical; moral law is not hypothetical obligations, while law becomes an attorney's cloak woven from the flimsy fabric of pragmatic philosophy artificially placed on the shoulders of arbitrary power."

This Should Be Done

Answering the question, "What should be done?" Monsignor Sheen continued:

"First, the new League of Nations, or whatever it is called, should not be open to everyone, but should have membership in it conditioned upon the acceptance of certain basic moral principles of justice. It should be more like a club than a street car; that is, it should have certain standards of admission. The subscription rate of the last league was too low. Because anyone could walk in, anyone could walk out. Hence a nation or a State that will not accept a common ethics or set of moral principles, as superior to the sovereignty of any nation and existing before any nation began, and binding even when its application goes against itself, should not be permitted to sit in that august body any more than a foreigner may sit in the senate of the United States.

"Hence if a big nation makes a condition that it will not enter the League unless it can swallow up half a dozen small nations—then let that power, whether it be Japan, Germany, Italy, Great Britain, Russia or the United States, be quarantined until it restores its ethical health. No sort of justice can survive if the thief agrees to its decision only on condition that he can keep his loot."

Monsignor Sheen said recent public pronouncements of both President Roosevelt, who called for prayer to God "for His blessing

Cites 'Only Hope' For Any Nation's Survival

DUBLIN.—(NC)—A nation, to survive the "present world disaster," must adopt the "true, sane and Christian doctrine" of cooperation, the Most Rev. Michael Browne, Bishop of the United Diocese in Calcutta, said.

"Workers and employers should unite in the defense of their common interests and every man who scorns of Galway and Kilmaroach, asserted in an address before a group of industrial executives the welfare of his country should use all his influence to promote that spirit and mentality of cooperation," Bishop Browne declared.

He reminded that it was the duty of workers to render honest labor for their wages and the duty of employers to pay a just wage and provide proper working conditions. Bishop Browne also asserted that the State should not impose too heavy taxes upon an industry, but should encourage industries to develop all the resources of the nation.

ing and for the establishment of a justice and permanent peace among all nations," and of Prince Minister Winston Churchill, who declared England's "ultimate goal" returns to religion and morality — for peace," revealed there is hope for the restoration of a moral order based on justice.

In lighting the war, the young men of America, he said, are learning "not the hard way, and the making of a new America and with love America more when they come back."

"We will have in America when this war is over—not from a foreign enemy, but an invasion of great men, twice-born Americans," Monsignor Sheen concluded "and when we get down to our knees and kneel to our idols by prayer or as they have by justice, we will not even understand the message that they speak. Their values will be different, their outlook on life will be different. They will be the new America."

Do you remember when . . .

... Folks got lost in Anthony Adverse and weren't heard from for months. "The Private Life of Henry VIII" was teachin' people bad table manners . . . and the "Veterans of Future Wars" was organized!

That was 1933, the year beer came back! And right from the start the smoothest, mildest goodness of Genesee made it Rochester's favorite beer!

... Every parking lot was a miniature golf course, full of tunnels, wheels, saws . . . the darndest contraptions! The M. R. A. Eagle was flying high . . . and everyone promised to do his part.

Every year since '33, Genesee has continued to do (itself) You'll find the reason in every bottle! Keep your details!

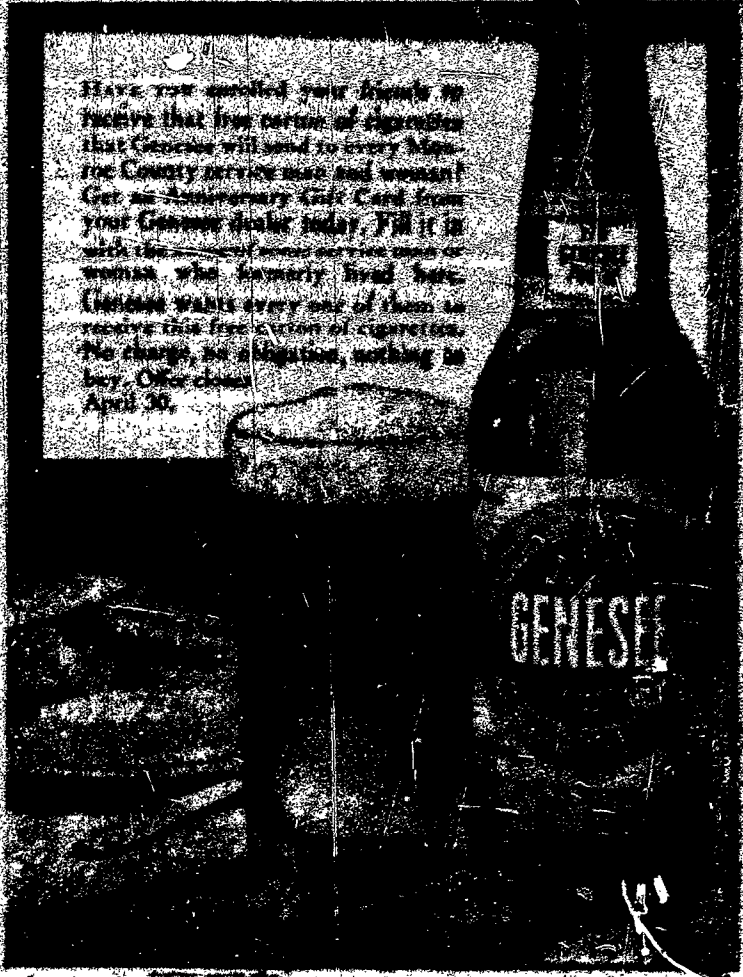

You sang: 1. A song about stars falling on Alabama! 2. A song about smoke and eyes! 3. A song about shuffling off to a city 75 miles west of here!
