Medical Mission Nuns To Train Nurses At New Hospital In India

PHILADELPHIA (NC) -- As a means of relieving, to some ex-tent, the vest shortege of trained nurses in India, the Medical Mis-sion Sisters have decided to construct a 200-bed hospital in Rawalpindi, India, to replace the new inadequate 60-bed structure there, Mother Dr. Anna Dengel, Superior General of the community, has ansounced at the Motherhouse here

Mother Dangel said the short-age of nurses in India is reflected in a survey made by the Nursing fournal of India, which stated there are only 7,000 trained nurses in the entire country of 400,000,000 persons. Clies Imperiance

At the All-India Catholic Congress, held in Mylapore, India, the Very Rev. Magr. Joseph C. Panji-karan of Ernakulam, in an addeclared the average is 29.0 beds for each hospital and said the hosfor each hospital and said the hospital with the largest number of and the Catholic University on beds is $it, Martha's Hospital at the "Day of the Pope." I find no well-equipped hospital Maurilio Slivani, Papal Nuncio to to give a good training course in nursing. For good training cannot be given to the pupil nurses unless the hospital has at least 200 beds, efficient and able doctors and other facilities. None of our present hospitals satisfy these condi-

At the same Congress, the Most Rev. Leandro Guido LeFlock, Bishop of Ajmor, declared that in any consideration of the training of nurses, the Holy Family Hospital at Rawalpindi, operated by the Medical Mission Sisters, descreed a "place of honor." He recalled that nuns of three communities were trained at the pospital, which is the one that will be replaced by the 200-bed structure.

Appreciating the above situation, shearvers say, one abould think back to the protest citizens have releed against American-made methus pictures creating in foreign sountries a false impression of the way we live in the United States. If there were grounds for protest on the motion pictures, they con-tinue, what are we to say about the radio expositions that go out in many languages to all parts of the world, under the sponsorship of the Government itself. These breadquets on very easily create extremely erroneeus impressions, not only about the way we are liv-ing but also about the way we are thinking.

No suo wants to deny, observers say, that OWI, including its foreign breadenst section, can do a valuable and necessary job in the presecution of the war. But, if it is to do this, they contend its brandensts to other countries must be a reflection of American thought and the American position on a given point not the personal, and cometimes bliter, opinion of an individual employe, or group of

It is a ridiculous situation, it is pointed out, for our diplomats and military to be working in close harmony toward a given end, only to have an individual, or a clique, out straight across the whole effort to a personal opinion, and at the Government's expense.

There are those in Washington who fear that, if a lack of super-vision should permit the recur-rence, or continuance, of the liaiian broadcast behavior, persons within the foreign section of the OWI may feel free to use it for personal and even party ends that are not siways American. In other wards, they say, it could be in view of what has happened—that some OWI material represents the epinion and perhaps the malice of small groups rather than a sincere effort to put forward the cause of the United States. There are those who say the
