

Send Pope Gift For China Children

DELAWARE — One hundred thousand grateful Irish mission workers have marked in characteristic manner the centenary of the Pontifical Association of the Holy Childhood United with their spiritual directors and promoters they have sent to the Holy See through the Most Rev. John McFadden, Archbishop of Dublin and the Association's Ecclesiastical Patron in Ireland, a message of loyalty to the Holy Father, a great spiritual banquet and a gift of $24,000 for the destitute children of China.

NATIONAL GROUPS

Los Angeles — Mexican, Filipino, Chinese and Korean Reserves were in this year's line of march that was reviewed by the Most Rev. John J. Cantwell, Archbishop of Los Angeles, when the annual procession of the Blessed Sacrament was held for the feast of the Sacred Heart under the joint auspices of the Perpetual Adoration Society and the Archdiocesan Holy Name Union.

THEY MAY KEEP YOUR CAR RUNNING

One of these girls may keep your car on the road by helping to supply synthetic rubber for new tires, some day soon! Chemistry majors at the summer school of Marygrove College, Detroit, the girls, left to right, Helen Skladzien, Virginia Snyder and Helen Swiecz, are learning the technique of fractional distillation by the separation of butyl and ethyl alcohols. Similar processes are used in the production of raw materials for synthetic rubber and solvents. Excellent positions await all science majors graduated. (N.C.W.C.)

130 Complete Aviation Studies Directed By Nun

WASHINGTON — (N.C.W.C.) — Ten weeks of intensive instruction in aeronautics, under the direction of Sister M. Aquinas, the "flying nun," were concluded August 7 at the Catholic University of America, where 124 teachers from twenty states have been attending courses in air education to help themselves to teach classes in the schools of the nation, with the opening of the fall term.

The class room activities, which dealt with pre-flight courses in elementary and secondary school practice, were supplemented with practical knowledge gained by the student-teachers through the facilities of the Washington National Airport, which Manager John Grove made available for regular weekly classes in the various departments of the field.

The classes, covering both sessions of the Catholic University summer term, were composed of 122 teachers and fifteen others who are planning to make some phase of aviation their profession.

The courses included aircraft structure, elementary aerodynamics, principles of flying, engine, meteorology, navigation, radio and communications.

Prof. Louis Crook, head of the Department of Aeronautics at the University, acquainted all the students with the nature of research being carried out at the school, and enriched the background by explanations of design, load testing and wind tunnel aerodynamic graphs, as well as provided Sister Aquinas with all the facilities of the well-equipped laboratory of the institution.

Sister Aquinas leaves early next week for her home in Ironwood, Mich., where she will continue pre-flight instruction in St. Ambrose High School, and direct publication of the curricular research of her students at Catholic University during the past ten weeks. The "flying nun" is enthusiastic over the success of her special classes at Catholic University.

"We have helped to provide air age education to an unlimited number of American youth through the instruction gained in this special course at the University," Sister Aquinas said. "Already a number of the teacher-students instructed in the first half of the course are now instructing other teacher groups so that the work is being carried on over a wide area. The enthusiasm of these teachers will match that of their students in the coming fall terms of school so that the knowledge of aviation will be carried down into the grades and thus instill in the youngsters some ideas of the world of aeronautics."

Home Work Hints

Regularity of schedule is important to make and keep babies healthy.

Comparing the coats of packages means little unless one knows how much each package contains.

True hospitality depends far more on kindness and consideration than upon material things offered guests.

Rhubarb juice is valuable for fruit beverages and for combining with other fruit juices to give tartness to jelly.

A piece of plaster board clamped to the ironing board does away with the practice of cutting out garments on the dining room table.

To make soap jelly for cleaning rugs, dissolve one part of mild soap flakes in five parts of hot water and beat to a suet with an egg-beater.

A narrow shelf over the sink to hold dishwashing supplies saves many steps. Paring knives and other utensils used at the sink may be hung underneath.

Program In Nutshell

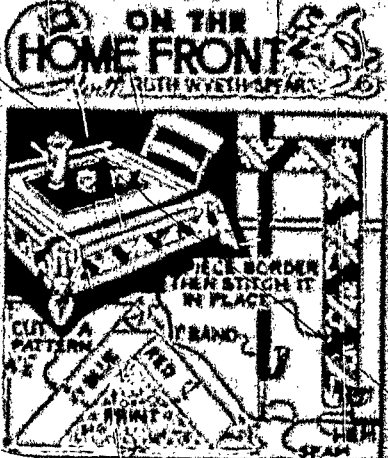

A program in a nutshell is Nebraska Union Farmer in this presented by the editor of The brief statement: Democracy cannot be superimposed from the top down. It must be established by the people from the bottom up. That the world will be refashioned by neighborhood is quite literally true. In the economic part of his reform, co-operatives are bound to play a leading part. — Social Justice Review.

From Flour Bags and Gay Scraps
If you save muslin flour bags or salt bags, you will be interested in this method of putting them together to make a large size luncheon cloth. Pieces are joined with press-open seams on the right side. The seams are then covered with bright contrasting bands of light weight cotton material as shown here.

This cloth also has a border pieced of small patterned cotton prints of all kinds and colors put together with red and blue stripes. The diagram at the lower left shows how to make a pattern for these pieces which are pieced together in the same manner as an old-fashioned quilt border.

Note: This luncheon cloth idea is from BOOK 5 of the series of home-making booklets offered with these articles. The booklet contains 33 pages of illustrated directions for making things for the home. The price of booklets is 10c plus 5c to cover cost of mailing.
