Convert Uses Shop Windows To Tell Of Catholicism

CHICAGO (NC)—Through store window displays and similar attractions, Carl Conrad, advertising official and chain-store executive, has been acquainting countless hundreds of persons with the truths of the Catholic faith.

Employing the window display project, which met with success in Cincinnati and Louisville, Mr. Conrad secured a shop window in a busy section of the Rogers Park section here. With the cooperation of the Rev. F. G. Dismore, S.J., pastor of St. Ignace Church, he decorated the window with a series of attractive posters, which attracted the attention of crowds from a nearby well-patronized movie theater. Hundreds of pamphlets explaining the Catholic doctrine were distributed.

Mr. Conrad, who is a convert and who gives his own time and money in the undertaking, explained that the window display idea "took immediately" and "I have been busy replacing the pamphlets." He added that "it proves people have open minds and many of them want to get authentic information about the Church."

Another center is operating in the Catholic Youth Organization library at the south end of Chicago's loop, where a school on current topics attracts thousands of persons of all races and creeds.

"I am amazed at the growth which the idea has had in Chicago," Mr. Conrad said. "I feel that Heaven has blessed my work because my wife and my two boys have been baptized in recent years."
