List Four Debuts In Concert Series

Easing the tension of wartime will be the annual Eastman Theatre Concert series which will include the finest artists and ensembles of the day.

Both "A" and "B" series contain attractions which will not be missed by music lovers.

Four debuts are set for Rochester. They include Claudio Arrau, Chilean pianist; Nathan Milstein, violinist; Astrid Varnay, soprano, who will join Lauritz Melchior, tenor, in dual recital, and the Philadelphia Opera Company.

Return engagements of Marian Anderson, greatest of contraltos, Vladimir Horowitz, pianist; Fritz Kreisler and the Boston Symphony will be eagerly greeted by patrons of the Eastman.

The two series as announced by the Rochester Civic Music Association are:

SERIES A—

"Die Fledermaus"—Philadelphia Opera Co., Oct. 22.
Ballet Theatre—Nov. 19.
Marian Anderson—Jan. 7.
Vladimir Horowitz—Feb. 18.
Nathan Milstein—Mar. 17.

SERIES B—

Fritz Kreisler—Oct. 26.
Claudio Arrau—Nov. 24.
Boston Symphony—Dec. 14.
Lauritz Melchior, Astrid Varnay—Jan. 28.
"Marina"—Feb. 11.

SLAIN PARATROOP CHAPLAIN WITH BRITISH IN SICILY

LONDON — The Rev. David Hourigan, a Salesian and an Army Chaplain who came through the ordeal of Dunkerque, was killed while serving with British paratroops in Sicily.

Aged 37, Father Hourigan was a native of Limerick, Ireland. He was ordained in China and came to London nine years ago on sick leave.

A COMMON PROBLEM

By MRS. LILLIAN M. ANDERSON

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association, 8 West 40th street, New York City. Three articles appearing weekly in our columns.

"Carol Smith, if you don't behave, you will have to go upstairs!" exclaimed the elderly mother. The little seven-year-old tried this before. I won't understand why you do that." Mrs. Smith turned to her mother, who was always listening. "Honestly, Mother, I am ashamed of the way my child is behaving." And concern was in her voice.

The older woman looked toward the child. "Carol, dear," she said, "don't you want to take Daily down and do a ride in her buggy? The sun is so nice and warm. If you will hurry her up until I finish these handkerchiefs, I will come and walk with you."

"Oh, goody, Grandma. Come on, Ann, let's go ride." And Carol caught up her doll from a chair and put it in the buggy. "The baby wants to ride, doesn't she?" The four-year-old child was now the solicitous mother.

After she had left the room, her mother said anxiously, "What is the matter with Carol? She has never before in all her life talked so badly and been so impudent."

"Don't worry, dear. Carol is all right, but she is so bewildered as you are. A condition has come into her young life that she has never met before. Perhaps I should feel badly about it, or guilty rather, for I am the cause, you see."

"You, Mother? How can that be?"

"Carol is being forced to share your interest and attention, for the first time. Until now, practically every one of her waking moments she has possessed you. You have usually been on hand ready to gratify her every whim. She has been the center of your whole individual world. When her father is at home she is the attraction for both of you. Now, she is sharing with me. As it has been, so long since you and I have seen each other, we have much to talk about. I thought of this before I came and wondered what her reaction would be. It was all right yesterday when I first came, because she, too, was interested, but we have talked on so many subjects that are unknown to her that she has become tired of it and is trying to focus our thoughts on herself, again. Last evening she shocked you by trying to 'show off.' She only did it to gain attention—and applause! That failed. Today she is trying another method: that of shouting and talking back to you."

"But, Mother, you are in visit us for such short time. I won't let this go on. It will become a habit. What shall I do?"

"Nothing should that overpower her break before anyone's very eyes.

Father Hohman, Noted Jesuit Educator, Dies

JEREMY CITY—The Rev. Arthur Hohman, S.J., head of the chemistry department at St. Peter's College, has died here at St. Francis Hospital after an illness of a year.

He was born in Buffalo 58 years ago and entered the Society of Jesus in 1885 in Cleveland. Before he joined the faculty at St. Peter's College here ten years ago, he had been Professor of Chemistry at Canisius College, Buffalo; St. John's College, Fordham; Georgetown University, Washington, D.C. He was the author of five textbooks.

Nothing should that overpower her break before anyone's very eyes.

ST. ANDREW'S PARISH

LEGION OF MARY MEETS

Active members of the Legion of Mary held a meeting Wednesday at 1:15 p. m. This parish has an auxiliary membership of 1,000 members. They are the army of the Blessed Mother who fight their spiritual battles, and who say their rosary daily, as a minimum load of prayer, uniting all the members as one large spiritual family.

All parishioners are requested to unite in this large army dedicated to the Queen of Peace.

Layman's Retreat

The laymen of St. Andrew's will spend this weekend at the Retreat House at Canera, situated on the shores of beautiful Seneca Lake.

"A retreat made there, will prove a veritable spiritual power-house to the fortunate men who are privileged to attend. About 12 men of this parish are going this year. It is hoped that this number will increase three-fold next year."

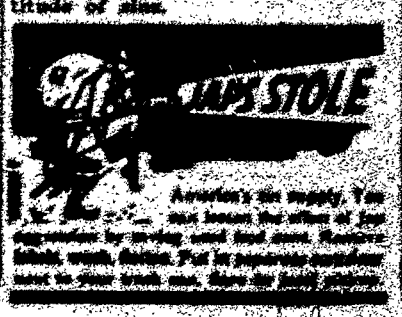
Broadcast Rites

New York — The service commemorating the Feast of St. Louis, at which the Most Rev. John J. Glennon, Archbishop of St. Louis, will participate on August 26, has been scheduled for broadcast from St. Louis in the "Church of the Air" series on the Columbia Broadcasting Sy

Finds But Ashes

He who has no thought beyond this earth climbs the green slopes of the hill of life only to perish at length on the bare, deserted summit.

Success sometimes covers a multitude of sins.



Answer's no reply. You can insure the return of lost possessions by having your name, address, phone, etc., on them. Put in separate envelope sent to your trade mark. Keep the lost papers.
