Cites Duty To Improve Condition Of Workers

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica.—"Our duty as representatives of Christ is to raise the level of the life of the workers, manually and intellectually," the Most Rev. Victor Sanabria, Archbishop of San Jose, said in his address at the First National Assembly of the Catholic Labor Organization of Costa Rica.

Archbishop Sanabria spoke of the social plan outlined in his Pastoral of three years ago and which is now under way. Addressing to the "workers' here assembled," he said: "I ask you, soldiers of labor, in the Name of Christ, to assume the post corresponding to you in this social evolution of our epoch."

Francis Echnovich, who was ordained to the priesthood at Tebury, Ill., on Aug. 15, returned to Guardian Angel Orphanage, here, to offer his first Solemn Mass at the institution where he made his grammar school studies. He had been brought to the orphanage following the death of his mother.

Jive Has Its Place Avers Music Educator

"All types of music have their place in the American scheme of things, even jive," said Harry W. Seitz, president of the National Catholic Music Educators Association, while in Cleveland last week to attend the organization meeting of the Ohio Chapter of the Association.

"This jiving music has its place," he said, "in furnishing some youth a means of emotional expression. If they must express themselves, it's better to do so by jiving than by other ways."

Mr. Seitz hastened to add that "We music educators should not think that the youth want and appreciate the better types of music so that their manner of expression will be higher culturally than the jiving stage."

Don Jive On Wave "If we don't provide the inspiration whereby they will express themselves in the right way," he said, "then they may express themselves in the wrong way." He added that he thought jive was definitely on the wave.

'Catholic Shelf' In Public Library Offers 'Apostolate'

The fact that Catholics as well as non-Catholics patronize public libraries, writes the Rev. Nicholas Steffen in the September issue of THE ECCLESIASTICAL REVIEW, suggests "an apostolate which could be promoted to advantage."

Seeking for a plan to make the heritage of Catholic literature readily available to all citizens, both Catholic and non-Catholic, Father Steffen recalls a plan worked out in the public library at Dubuque, Iowa. The plan, he explains, is to display Catholic books on a special reserve shelf to be known as "The Catholic Shelf."

The procedure to be followed in establishing "The Catholic Shelf" in public libraries is outlined by Father Steffen as follows:

First, it is recommended that the priest inform himself regarding the number of Catholic books already catalogued in the library, and regarding the average circulation of all religious books. Books placed on a "Catholic Shelf" have been found by actual record to have a circulation from three to five times that of Catholic books assigned to regular stacks. Second, a definite plan for the maintenance of the "Shelf" should be worked out. Many libraries are willing to purchase selected Catholic books out of their regular budgets. When libraries lack funds, parish societies, Knights of Columbus and others might offer books as gifts to the library. Third, it is indispensable that a carefully prepared list of truly representative Catholic works be placed at the library's disposal.
