Scrap Paper Drive Enlists Catholic School Pupils

Father Duffy Cites 'Special Job' In Appeal To Children

Rochester's thousands of parochial school children organized this week to collect scrap paper in an effort to aid the nation's war program.

In a special message the Rev. John M. Duffy, Diocesan Superintendent, called upon parochial schools of the city to support the waste paper drive which will end on Nov. 6.

"While your brothers, uncles, fathers, and maybe sisters are over there fighting for us," stated Father Duffy, "you have a special job to collect every bit of scrap paper in your neighborhood."

Prizes Offered

A prize, Father Duffy announced, will be awarded to the school gathering the largest amount of paper scrap, according to the number of pupils in the school.

Profits from the sale of the paper scrap will be divided between the individual schools and the Catholic Diocesan Education Office.

Early this month, the Office of Civilian Defense warned that the present paper shortage is serious. There is an urgent need for waste paper to make up the deficiency in wood pulp occasioned by the manpower shortage in our pulp forests. This year the paper industry needs a 3,000,000 tons more of waste paper than last year.

Father Duffy has instructed parochial school pupils to start immediately a door-to-door campaign to obtain pledges from homes to save paper for them.

The children will collect the paper from homes on Thursday and Friday, Nov. 4 and 5, and take it to their respective schools.

Trucks will collect the paper scrap from the schools on Saturday, Nov. 6.

George C. Vogt, college director. Members of organized labor and persons interested in labor relations are invited to attend. There is no charge for the course.
