U. S. Soldier Writes How Catholics Aided Persecuted Jews in Europe

NEW YORK (NC) — An American soldier, Pvt. M. J. Archer, writing from Germany to the National Jewish Welfare Board here, tells how Catholic priests, Religious and laity in Belgium aided the persecuted Jewish people during the years of Nazi occupation.

"In every town, village and city I ask for Jewish people," the soldier writes. "I and the other American soldiers have helped a little. The Catholic churches and most of the civilians have hidden and fed Jewish people. The Church's funds were taken by the Germans and civilians were afraid of death, the penalty for helping a Jew.

"Mother Jeanne Marie, Mother Superior of the Institut Notre Dame de Lourdes in Liege, Belgium, and Father Arnold Tasin, pastor of Notre Dame du St. Rosaire in Liege, I have learned, did much to help, feed and hide Jews."

But his complete abandonment by creatures only deepened his interior peace and devout longing for Heaven.
