Writes of 'Shadows Over English Literature'

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Constance Julian, an Australian convert author, has written a new book, "Shadows Over English Literature." Surveying English literature from the angle of Catholicism, Miss Julian's theme is that writers and poets, such as Cowper, Chatterton, Coleridge, Keats and Keats have been shadowed by the effects to the Protestant Reformation.

The book is published here by the Brown Company.

One BRIGHT Spot on Your Cost of Living

One bright spot in these days of mounting cost of living is the low cost of electric service.

You can still buy electricity at the same old pre-war prices . . . the lowest-in-the-nation . . . and it hasn't been rationed.

Every family in this area gets reliable, round-the-clock electric service for its homes and business needs. It's been accomplished under the unique system of free enterprise, by independent light and power companies. And it costs less than 50 per cent more than it did twenty years ago.

Electric power is the most economical way to heat your home. It's the easiest way to cook your meals. It's the easiest way to wash your clothes. It's the easiest way to dry them. It's the easiest way to light your home.
