"Even if it was this, it had all the prayers in it," Private Monahan related. "I was thinking of the prayers. I wanted those prayers to keep me from harm while I took care of myself as best I could with a Browning automatic rifle. The prayer book did its part up north of Aachen. I got caught in heavy fire there and the prayer book knocked out from under me. Before I fell there was a thump against my chest and when I couldn't get up I gave the rifle. I knew I wouldn't be able to use it one of the boys moving up."

"Back in the field hospital I found out about the prayer book. They stripped off my jacket and found just a red mark on my chest. Alongside the table a medic checked out my jacket and found the little prayer book. It was in bad shape from the bullet. You

Relief for Norway Acting on information received through Sweden that illness among the Norwegian people has increased alarmingly since 1940, and that civilian hospitals have been overcrowded with the war, the American Red Cross is sending to Norway more than $100,000 worth of hospital equipment and medical supplies.
