

Catholic Plan On Veteran Needs Told Auburnians

Auburn — The Auburn Community Council conducted a Panel Discussion on veterans' problems in the past war world on Tuesday evening in the auditorium of Central High School. Judge Edwin W. Leary presided and other speakers were Paul Farnum, chairman of the veterans committee; Dr. Charles G. Hetherington, superintendent of schools; Miss Martha Carris, Home Service secretary of the Cuyaga Chapter of the Red Cross; Robert W. Embold, Veterans Representative in this area; Mrs. Harry Allen who represented Mrs. Lucille Chisholm of the Public Welfare Committee; Mrs. Harry A. Tidd, executive secretary of the Family Welfare Society; Rev. Richard T. Torney, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Church; and the Rev. Warren O. Odum. Following the talks questions were answered from the floor concerning the problems facing the veterans when they return home.

Father Torney in his address told of the Catholic Church's plans to minister to all needs of the veterans and their families, not so much in financial aid as in reintegrating them socially and religiously into the life of the community. He stated that the Catholic Church plans to enlarge its rural program in order that its ministry may extend to areas occupied by those who need the neighborhood service it can offer.

Many returning chaplains will be assigned to these new chapels. The Church believes in the right of men to work and to receive adequate compensation so that their families may live a comfortable and happy life in collective bargaining and in co-operation between management and labor to eradicate the evils existing on both sides of the fence to the end that in peace and harmony our country may build for a better future.

Faith Unmoved by Science, Priest Tells Nurse Group

Auburn—Only the small men in scientific pursuits find their faith disturbed was the contention of the Rev. Emmett T. Dougherty, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Moravia, in addressing Auburn Chapter, National Council of Catholic Nurses, Thursday evening.

Miss Adrienne Franks, presiding, heard Miss Murray, chairman of the card party, hold last week, report on the party's success.

Father Dougherty said in part: "The word 'ethical' must be followed by the word 'super-natural' in the lexicon of the Catholic nurse whose vision does not stop at the physical body of her patient but penetrates the very depths of the human soul. In recent years, one reason why there is ever so much more need of consolation for our patients is that a great many of them have lost that old-fashioned faith and confidence in Providence.

"In recent years the great scientists of this country, our leaders in science, have been recasting very much the impression that science disturbs faith. Professor Millikan is whom the Nobel Prize for physics was awarded some years ago has delivered two series of addresses on the relation between science and faith which have been published. He states that it is only the small men in science who find their faith disturbed. When Doctor Walsh was at the Pastoral Institute just after Father's death there was a tradition that the old man whose work had saved more lives than any other man that ever lived, declared that far from his science disturbing his faith, it added to it and deepened it. Father Dougherty continued: "Our greatest source of consolation continues to be religion. Don't think for a moment that you are old-fashioned if religion continues to mean a very great deal to you. You are in excellent company. I could name a dozen of men, the great exponents of our modern medicine such as Dr. James Walsh of Fordham University has pointed out, in his volume on that subject, who are firm believers."

Millikan has pointed out a dozen of men who are leaders in science at this very moment in America and who are all firm believers." Concluding, Father Dougherty said "Keep your faith and help your patients' faith whatever it may be, in its hereafter and in overruling Providence, in an order of things that has a meaning for life here and hereafter, and in the significance of suffering on lifting us up to higher and better things in ourselves, and in spiritual development."
