The NCCS Canteen Review

By The Observer

Sunday, May 20—They came, and they came, and they came, these servicemen guests of ours, until the amazing total of 101 was reached, and the cupboard was completely bare. The girls of the Children of Mary, Alumnae of Sacred Heart Academy, were hostesses. We are sure they were well tired out when closing time came, for it was a steady flow of "business" all morning. We hope they enjoyed themselves, too, for in spite of the crowd and the pressure, it was a very successful morning.

We were wonderfully entertained by dance pupils. There were ten small children and they put on a show that delighted our boys, many of whom have children of their own at home and enjoy being put in mind of them. These youngsters were cute, and very skilled: they demonstrated various types of dancing. The costumes also lent much to their appeal. One of the dancers, a petite four-year-old miss, succeeded in capturing the heart of everyone.

The previous Sunday, you know, we were entertained, also royally, by the Jaynes Sisters, who rendered several attractive dance numbers and were loudly applauded by the boys. These girls frequently give their time to the USO as entertainers, and we particularly enjoyed having them visit us. We know the boys would love to have them come again, — and so would all of us!

Earl King, the sailor with the wonderful voice, is leaving us, we have learned much to our sorrow. When Earl entered the room, he was always besieged and led to the piano, despite his weekly protests that it was criminal to sing so early in the morning. In the end, he would always oblige and sing several numbers. Usually he had breakfast sometime during the morning, but we wondered, every week, whether he was going to get a chance to eat. We're going to miss him when he leaves Sampson: none of us, and not many of our guests, are so well-gifted.

Earl is due to report to a new assignment on the West Coast, where his wife and two children live: strangely enough, he's anxious to go!
