We Salute the Catholic Schools of Rochester

Since 1868 We Have Been Proud
To Be a Part of Rochester

The Catholic Schools of Rochester will celebrate their 75th anniversary in 1946. No record of achievement during these years is more significant than the day of its school. In the quiet moments of the day, the teachers and girls attend the elementary and secondary schools. The teachers of adults remember, in their daily work, the invaluable lessons of knowledge and conduct they learned from the good classes, persons and the members of the school. Special schools, too, have been long established and their graduates are now in the ranks of the nation's leaders. The students have national recognition and the schools have provided opportunity for every student. The schools of present are educating about 500 young men and women. Commercial schools, St. Joseph's and St. Mary's, supply students who prefer a business or an academic education. The schools are proud of its Catholic heritage and its contribution to the life of all America.
