Diocese Collects 138 Tons of Food For War-Stricken

Diocesan churches and organizations collected 229,389 cans of food weighing more than 138 tons in the recent nationally sponsored drive for the war stricken Europe and the Far East, the Rev. John S. Randall, diocesan director, reports.

Cooperating with War Relief Services, National Catholic Welfare Conference, Rochester launched its one-week drive Dec. 9 to help feed the millions of starving people in the two war-devastated areas.

Cases of food collected in the parish centers and at the campaign depot, 33 Aqueduct Street, were shipped with all possible speed to New York City, where they were loaded aboard ship immediately.

In the city of Rochester alone, according to Father Randall's report, 105,902 cans of food were donated to the drive. Out of city centers collected 123,487 cans.

To the out of town total, Auburn contributed 7,547 cans, Geneva, 9,563, Corning, 6,361 and Elmira, 23,037.

The diocesan collection averaged over a pound of food to the can, the total weight amounting to 276,574 pounds.

Campaign Opens Feb. 7 With Dinner at Rochester

The Most Rev. Walter A. Foery, Bishop of Syracuse, will keynote the $500,000 drive for a new St. Andrew's Preparatory Seminary on Thursday, February 7, at the opening dinner for all diocesan campaign workers in Rochester's Chamber of Commerce.

An alumnus of St. Andrew's, Bishop Foery accepted an invitation offered by Bishop James E. Kearney of Rochester, honorary chairman of the drive which will extend through February 22.

Clergy and laymen from every parish in the Diocese are expected at the February 7 dinner. Indications are that large delegations will be on hand from parishes in the Geneva, Auburn, Corning and Elmira Deaneries as well as the Rochester area.

The Syracuse Bishop was graduated from St. Andrew's in 1910 and ordained to the priesthood following completion of his studies at St. Bernard's in June, 1916. He held pastorates at Mount Carmel and Holy Rosary Church in Rochester and served as director of Rochester Catholic Charities before his elevation to Ordinary of the Syracuse See.

Harold J. Coleman, general chairman of the campaign announced this week that organization plans for the drive are well under way. Workers are being recruited in the various parishes to help raise the quotas assigned to such parishes.

The Diocese has been divided
