French Underground Leader Restores London Statue

London — (RNS) — In the French Church of Notre Dame de France here is a statue of the Virgin Mary which was damaged in an air raid during the war but has now been completely restored, thanks to the devotion of a French underground leader.

He is Gilbert Renault, Paris business man, known during the German occupation as Colonel Rouller of the resistance movement. It was he who organized a group of secret agents described as the Confreres of Notre Dame.

In 1942, while visiting the French church in London prior to embarking on one of his hazardous secret missions, Colonel Rouller saw the defaced statue. He obtained permission from the rector, Father Laurent, to remove it for repairs. Shortly afterwards he landed in France from an RAF plane, and took the statue to a Paris sculptor.

The statue remained in the colonel's Paris flat until after the liberation of France. It has now been replaced in its previous niche, and has been blessed by Auxiliary Bishop Edward Myers of Westminster, with Gilbert Renault — otherwise Colonel Rouller — among those present for the ceremony.

House Told Reds Out to Get Hoover

ing the first World War, which lasted less than two year, we had innumerable acts of sabotage within this country," Bradley said.

"During this second World War which lasted four years and more, not one single act of enemy sabotage was committed in this country and enemy espionage, or spying activities, was kept definitely under control under the FBI headed by J. Edgar Hoover.

"Yet, in 1940, the Communists sought to oust Mr. Hoover at a time when Russia was lined up with Germany and Hoover's FBI had thousands of potential enemy agents under surveillance.

"Recently, in a public speech, Mr. Hoover charged that Communism in America is a definite threat to our form of government.

"It was his first public utterance of such a nature, but it was a significant statement, coming from the one man in the United States best in a position to know about and evaluate the danger of threats to our form of government.

Would Hamstring FBI

"From the date of that speech there has been a growing movement to oust Mr. Hoover, hamstring the FBI by 'streamlining it into ineffectiveness — and the name of this Mr. Schwarzwalder is more and more frequently heard in discussions of a successor for Mr. Hoover.

"Mr. Schwarzwalder, before entering Government service, was a social worker for nine years in Philadelphia.

"Before that he had worked for a time for a West Coast motion picture company, managed a bank, slept operated as a subsidiary of a cigar store, was a hand surveyor, served as a railroad checker and worked for an insurance company.

"Harry" said Schwarzwalder went to the Budget Bureau in 1933.

"Mr. Schwarzwalder had a knack for 'streamlining' government agencies at the Budget Bureau, and was successful in eliminating files gathered by the Secret Service. They [illegible] with subversive [illegible]," he said.

"If the F. B. I. Mr. Schwarzwalder would do to streamline the files of the FBI spy will be [illegible]."

Chaplain Hails Austrians' Faith

Deplores Actions of Red Troops Toward Women

Steubenville — (NC) — The firm faith and strong anti-Nazi sentiment existing in the hearts of the Austrian people remains one of the dearest recollections of the Rev. Thomas P. Gilbert, Army chaplain and priest of the diocese of Steubenville, who has returned here after more than a year of service in the European theatre.

"The greatest enemy Hitler had was the Austrian Catholics," he said. "As a result he hated them intensely and vowed that he would destroy the Catholic Church in that country. It explains why the Americans were welcomed with open arms. No conquering hero ever received a greater demonstration of welcome than we were accorded."

During his stay in Steyr, Austria, Father Gilbert was directly across the border from the Russian zone of occupation. Scarcely a girl or woman ranging in age from 10 to 70 years escaped violation by the Soviet troops, he said.

Move to Keep Hoover Urged

they are getting practically none asking them to keep them.

Tide Could Be Turned

It is said that if enough good American citizens send an avalanche of letters in the next two weeks to their Congressmen demanding that Hoover be retained as head of the F. B. I. and the Committee on Un-American Activities be extended for another term, the tide could be turned.

Those who sense the danger in Washington have recommended immediately contacting as many friends as possible about this matter to ask them, in turn, to phone five or ten friends each, urging them to write their Congressmen without delay.

It would cost them only a few moments in time and would be performing a simple patriotic duty that can mean much for the future peace of the country. Last but not least, it is an opportunity to see that Christian principles are not excluded from government.

Pope Unaware Of Plot on Hitler

Vatican City — (Radio, NC) — Osservatore Romano has published a denial of secular press reports that the Holy Father was aware of the plot against Hitler's life which culminated in the unsuccessful anti-tank-bomb incident of July 20, 1944.

The Vatican daily points out that while the Pope knew of the existence of various anti-Nazi and anti-Hitler currents inside Germany he had no knowledge of the assassination plans.

(A dispatch from Nuremberg said that according to unpublished documents the late President Roosevelt, former Prime Minister Churchill, high Vatican officials, and a number of other persons knew of the plot for months beforehand. The Vatican was said to have been informed indirectly by Admiral Wilhelm Canaris, chief of German counter-intelligence, through ecclesiastical offices in Vienna.)
