8 Weekends Added for Lay Retreatants

The retreat season for laymen in Rochester diocese will be eight weeks longer than last year, the Rev. Augustine J. Aylward, C.SS.R., Retreat Master announced at a meeting of Rochester-area promoters of the Laymen's Retreat League, Feb. 1.

Addressing the promoters at the meeting held in St. Joseph's Hall Rochester, Father Aylward said the retreat season would begin with the first weekend in May and extend through October. Lengthening of the season, Father Aylward said, has been made necessary because of an expected increase of 40 percent.

Promoters revealed that parishes previously having retreats on the same weekend at Our Lady of the Lake Diocesan Retreat House in Geneva had increased the number going to make it necessary to have separate retreats.

Final schedule was referred to the League's Executive Committee, President B. E. Shlesinger; Executive Vice President Frank Wolfe and Secretary George P. Schmidt who will confer with Father Aylward.

Purse for Fr. Murphy

Secretary Schmidt reported that a $508 purse had been raised for the Rev. John P. Murphy, C.SS.R. founder of the diocesan retreat house and former retreat master. Father Murphy is now at the Redemptorist Mission Church, Roxbury, Mass.

A gold wrist watch suitably engraved was purchased with the money and sent to Father Murphy. The balance is to be used for erecting a permanent memorial to the founder, a statue of the Blessed Virgin, Patroness as Our Lady of the Lake, in the circle in front of the retreat house.

President Shlesinger read Father Murphy's letter thanking the retreatants and promising to remember them in each Mass he offers.

With the next meeting of promoters to be held early in April they were asked to contact men of their parishes for early reservations because of limited capacity of the retreat house. A special welcome to returning veterans to the retreat movement was urged.

Growth of the retreat movement in Rochester diocese was revealed in these figures: in 1942, first year, 161 made the retreat; 1943, the number was 350; 1944, the retreatants numbered 486; in 1945, the total was 560.

Auburnians Await First Trapp Family Concert

Auburn—Music lovers in Auburn are looking forward to attending the first concert of the world-famed Trapp Family Singers scheduled for Thursday evening, Feb. 14 at East High School Auditorium under the sponsorship of Auburn Council, Knights of Columbus.

A rare opportunity to hear works of such early composers as Bach, Mozart, Purcell and William Byrd performed on the instruments for which they were originally written will be offered to music lovers of Auburn and vicinity. The Trapp Family have been responsible for the restoration to modern concert use of that long-neglected member of the woodwind family, the recorder or blockflute and their program will feature a special group using these instruments in various combinations with voice and spinet.

Recorders of four different sizes are in possession of the Trapp family and they follow in tonality the same range as the human voice—soprano, alto, tenor and bass. Their tone is not flute-like, but sounds much more like that of a small organ. The name "recorder" undoubtedly refers to the instrument's early use by hunters in the "recording" or repeating of bird calls.

The Trapp Family began giving concerts at the suggestion of Mme. Lotte Lehman who heard them sing in their home. In their concerts they sing folk songs of the Tyrol never written down before, traditional calls of the Alpine shepherd and quaint, authentic yodels.

Wear Native Dress

The family are natives of Austria, formerly owners of a medieval castle in a little Tyrolean mountain village near Salzburg, famous for summer music festivals. The family habitually wear their native costumes. They have a home in Merion, Pa., and a farm in Vermont. They make their own clothes and even shoes, do carpentry, laundry, mending, cooking, painting in oils, exquisite embroidery and delicately wrought metal work. Each member has his or her particular job to do for the welfare and comfort of all.

The musical group is composed of Baron Georg von Trapp, Baroness Maria Augusta, seven daughters, two sons and Father Franz Wasner, family chaplain and musical director.

Rev. Gregory Dugan, honorary chairman, announced this week that the concert would commence at 8:15. Reserved tickets are on sale at the Douglass Book Store and the Dowd-Leo Company while the general admission tickets are available at many of the down town stores as well as from members of Auburn Council, Knights of Columbus.
