Creation of 2 Dioceses In Spain is Expected

Madrid — (RNS) — Two new dioceses are expected to be created shortly in Spain following reported negotiations between the Spanish government and the Vatican. It is believed one will be in separate ecclesiastical jurisdiction. This will be the first time in many centuries that any change has been made in Spain's episcopal territories.

Faith in God is Secret Of Peace Avers Oursler

The whole secret of peace is embodied in the simple motto "In God We Trust" inscribed by inspired forefathers on American coins, Fulton Oursler convert and editor of the Readers Digest, declared Sunday evening at Aquinas Institute.

Beginning the road to peace, asserted Mr. Oursler, lies in a renewal of faith in almighty God and his dominion over men.

Addressing a Christian Culture Lecture audience which turned out in large numbers despite the bad weather, the noted novelist, dramatist and editor presented "A Formula for Peace of Mind," "Wandering Children."

Mr. Oursler compared the anxiety and fear so prevalent in people living in this atomic age to the nervous reactions of little children lost in the streets. "We have lost our heavenly Father in large part," he said, "and now we are like little children wandering in the streets, seeking a Father's guiding hand."

Because the world lost that simple faith and trust in its Creator, because science repudiated God and morality and taught a philosophy of negation and destruction, the world is in its present state of chaos, the speaker explained.

The false philosophy that sees no accountability for actions, he added, dominated American universities as well as the rest of the world and came to a point of focus in Hitler. Because his doctrine was accepted, men died. Wars of Excess.

NATIONS WREAK

Princeton — John Foster Dulles, UNO delegate: "The nations feel it again expedient to push for gains at the expense of each other and at the risk of discord."

Surrender

By Robert Christie

Men of God walk softly at prayer,
In measured step along the sand-
dunes path,
Nearby looms a bleak dwelling
Inhabited by these white-faced warriors

Who draw us Night to forever
cloak the Day's evil,
And sweep Poverty to their
breasts reverently.
As rich men whine to Reason's
god;
Holy men reading within, smiling
as each, his soul answered:
"I came, my star above, a
thunder cloud,
The sea below but a recess for
a suicides' end!
(What impulse had guided me
to the enemy's camp?)
Hell exiled from goodness stared
these blighted men;
Footsteps wane; silence eagerly
watches the combat,
Beseechingly the enemy storms
my soul!

A hateful glance is heaved by
pious eyes,
Sands turn black with darkened
deeds
And leave a soul golden to the light,
Mute stillness deafens even the sea

As each word entices: "Come follow me!"
My knees are crucified to earth,
My heart is pierced with love,
My sword is Gratitude, Take it!
I am defeated; conquered!
Thou voice raised in hymns
Welcome me to Him.

must die to ourselves," he concluded. "So long as we care about what happens to us, we will have no peace of mind.
What matters is not what happens, but how we react to it."

Concluding on a note of optimism, Mr. Oursler called attention to the fact that American tradition is fundamentally religious.
"This country was founded in a climate of faith," he pointed out.
"It was our inspired forefathers
who wrote 'In God We Trust' and inscribed it in coins. Therein lies the whole secret of peace of mind."
