Doctors and Lawyers

(Excerpt from the fourth sermon on the general theme "Return From Exile" ...)

The two professions among laymen which are nearest to the heart of Christ, are the professions of medicine and law. The doctor in one sense is another Christ for imitating Christ he cures the lame and brings solace to the sick. The lawyer is the minister of God's justice and represents to man in a practical way the operation of God's law.

When the men of these two professions forget the other when they have taken and the high state to which they have been called and preclude their professions for selfish gain, power, or renown they participate in the modern crucifixion of Christ just as surely as did the ones who nailed Him to a cross in the first crucifixion.
